U. S. GRAIN GOES VIA MONTREAL

AMERICAN RAILROADS CHOOSE CANADIAN PORT

Produce Exchange Will Try to Restore Trade to New York.

New York, June 15.—The withdrawal from service of the freight ships of the White Star line, and the complaint of the company that the railroads have so discriminated against New York that the grain of the country is being sent abroad by way of Montreal, will be thoroughly gone into by the New York produce exchange next Thursday, when its trade and transportation committee will submit a report on the subject which is expected to recommend the appointment of a committee to confer with the railroads.

"New York should be the natural shipping point for the grain of the country," said President Ring, of the exchange, "and there seems to be other reasons for the grain being sent to Montreal than that the railroads have discriminated against New York. They are giving New York. They are handling the grain and all the terminals are in good shape to admit of its handling. The railroads have plenty of cars and engines."

Mr. Ring said that everything that could be done would be done by his association to bring back the business to this city.

PRINCIPAL DONATION.

Montreal, June 15.—The Bank of Montreal has donated $10,000 to the Quebec battlefields fund.

"One Eyed Murderer" Clue Leads to Capture of Negro.

Vancouver, June 15.—A colored man named James Moore has been arrested on a charge of having murdered a fisherman named Pat O'Brien on Friday night in this city. O'Brien's throat was cut and he was dead when found. The police traced the murderer from the fact that the woman said that a negro with one eye did the deed. He was arrested four miles out of the city. In his cabin were found a number of blood-soaked garments which he had just discarded, and the sleeve of his shirt was covered with blood.

The jury was out all night on Friday, and reported a disagreement on Saturday morning. Judge Fitzgerald sent them back, telling them that the evidence showed the prisoner was not insane when he killed the man, as he pleaded in defence that he was, and appealed to them to agree on a verdict in accordance with the evidence. They retired a second time, but at 3 o'clock in the afternoon an reported a disagreement and were discharged. The jury stood 7 to 5 for acquittal. A new trial begins to-day.

FLORIDA TORPEDOED.

U. S. Naval Experiments on Old Monitor at Point Comfort.

Norfolk, Va., June 15.—The monitor Florida was used in testing the power of a torpedo on Saturday. Upon arrival at the navy yard the Florida was immediately run into the big stone dry dock and the water pumped out, in order that a close examination of the damage done by the torpedo might be definitely seen. This examination showed that a clean hole, extending from the superstructure ten feet down the hull had been made, and that it was 20 feet in length. The destructive power of the torpedo was the marvel of the examining officers.

It was the opinion of experts that without the bulkhead the monitor would have gone down in a few minutes at the most, and that with it she could have easily been kept afloat indefinitely with the occasional use of the pumps.

"BLACK HAND" THREATENS REVELSTOKE MAN

Vengeance to Fall on Family if $1,000 is Not Forthcoming.

(Special to the Times.)

Revelstoke, June 15.—A letter signed by the Black Hand and sent in the regulation "Mafia" style was last week posted here to C. B. Hume, a well known merchant, warning him that vengeance would be taken against the members of his family if he failed to place a package containing one thousand dollars in currency on the western pier of the C. P. R. bridge at this place.

Hume was absent in Vancouver when the letter was received at his office and his manager, who opened it, paid no attention to its contents. The police regard the matter seriously and a close guard is being kept on Hume and his family.

One of the most interesting speeches was that made by Deaconess Knapp, of New York, who traced the history of the training and work of deaconesses in America. Many delegates attended social functions.

Both the Prince of Wales and Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal are to give large garden parties next week in honor of the delegates.

ON WAY TO FIANCEE SHE WEDS MARRIED MAN

Allan Line Purser Arrested for Bigamy—Discarded Lover
Furnished Funds.

Montreal, June 15.—Dr. Fred G. Ackland is under arrest in London, England, on the charge of bigamy, having married Hetty Florence Gertrude Satchell in Montreal, while he was already a married man. He was surgeon on the Allan liner Pomeranian.

The young lady lived in London, England, and was engaged to be married to an Englishman living in Manitoba. This discarded lover sent her $600 with which to buy her trousseau and pay her fare from London to Winnipeg. She had about $400 of this amount when she boarded the Pomeranian. The steamer landed here on Saturday, and on the following Tuesday the wedding took place in St. George's church. As soon as the young woman's money was gone, Ackland left her. She followed him to England, and his arrest followed.

GLOWING OUTLOOK IN PRAIRIE WEST

ABUNDANT YIELD FORETOLD EVERYWHERE

Indications That Harvest Will Be a Month Earlier Than Usual.

Winnipeg, June 15.—Although the past week has been characterized by heavy showers, alternating with spells of heat, the nights generally have been cool, and from reports received the young crops do not appear to have suffered. Apparently root strength has not suffered by reason of rapid top growth, and Superintendent Murray, of the Dominion Experimental farm at Brandon, says that while there has been too much hot weather, there are really no ill effects. Grain is still as healthy looking as could be desired, and there is no sign of yellow. Beyond, therefore, the inconveniences arising from the great length of straw, the crop to date has, so far maintained its record of best possible condition. If ever percentage classification comes into use in the prairie west the first two months of 1908 will represent the standard, or one hundred points, by which other seasons can be measured. Normal conditions are only needed to secure a bumper harvest at least a month earlier than last year.

Starting with Manitoba, the reports are most gratifying. Portage Plains never showed better prospects and the farmers there are already talking of an immense yield. Heavy rains in Southern Manitoba are bringing the crops along nicely, while in the north, where much of the land is new, there is not a single adverse report.

In Saskatchewan everything is doing well along the main line of the C. P. R. It is now quite clear that the frost of a few weeks ago did no permanent damage. In Regina district, where owing to a heavy "gumbo" soil the crop is generally a little late, the wheat is now twelve inches high, while similar conditions prevail on the Assiniboine and the Red river, where there is considerable increased acreage seeded to flax and oats. Moose Jaw reports grain remarkable for its sturdiness, with the roots well stooled out. Further north reports are equally encouraging. Saskatoon has nothing but good to say of the conditions throughout the province, while Lloydminster says the crops have never been so advanced during the six years of settlement, the only danger being too much straw.

Calgary says that the crops are all that could be wished, especially fall wheat and coarse grains. Heavy rains have been prevalent, but do not appear to have injured the crop. Macleod reports fall wheat thirty-five inches high and just beginning to head out, while spring wheat is fifteen inches. Lethbridge says cool wet weather has caused the grain roots to grow deeper and stronger and the spring wheat to stool out more. The rain has gone off nicely and no grain has been drowned out.

Grass is in excellent shape, with cutting already starting, and brome and rye grass in head. Red Deer, Lacombe and Stettin districts all look splendid and similar reports come from Edmonton, Wetaskiwin and other more northern points. So far there is no sign in the outlook of the crops of the prairie west.

FIFTEEN BULLS WITH ROSS RIFLE

HOW COLONEL HUGHES ANSWERS ITS CRITICS

Conservative M. P. Maintains His Veracity Against That of Sir C. Tupper.

(Special to the Times.)

Ottawa, June 15.—Col. Sam Hughes has scored once more against the Ross rifle critic, and incidentally against Geo. Fowler, M. P., who in the Commons recently took occasion to criticize Col. Hughes' own attempts at shooting with Canada's new national arm. At Quebec on Saturday, in the presence of cheering crowds, Col. Hughes scored fifteen straight bull-eyes at the 500 yards range with the new long Ross rifle. A small arms committee appointed to test the Ross rifle under the chairmanship of Col. Hughes, was at Quebec on Saturday conducting the test.

Col. Hughes will bring up in the Commons again the question of veracity between himself and Sir Charles Tupper, relative to the latter's position in saying the only mistake he made in saying that Sir Charles declared in caucus that the Conservatives had made a mistake in opposing the government scheme for an all-Canadian route to Yukon. The latter made a statement to a gathering of Conservatives at his own house in Ottawa, but the colonel maintains his statement of the case is substantially correct.

REMARKABLE VOLCANIC OUTBREAK IN SAMOA

Sweeps Away Houses
of Natives.

Auckland, N. Z., June 15.—Advice received here state that for three nights beginning on May 10th there was a remarkable volcanic outbreak on Savaii, the largest of the Samoan islands. The first eruption was followed by the greatest flow of lava in the history of the island, it being estimated at nearly 3,000 tons per minute. Soon there was an almost continuous flow of lava eight miles wide, and from six inches to six feet flowing down the mountain side. It overpowered the cliffs, destroying many native houses in its way, dropping into the ocean and causing an immense uprising of steam.

JIM HILL SILENT ON BIG STOCK POLICY

Railroad Magnate, However,
Thinks Violators of Law
Should Be Punished.

Washington, June 15.—James J. Hill, chairman of the board of the Great Northern railroad, conferred with President Roosevelt on Saturday, and afterwards stated that he was going on his vacation and had taken his leave of Mr. Roosevelt.

When the president's policy towards corporations was made a subject of inquiry as bearing on the future of railroads, Mr. Hill disavowed any special knowledge, but vigorously insisted that any corporation found violating the law should be prosecuted to the utmost.

Speaking of the segregation of subsidiary companies by railway corporations, he said that as far as the Northern Pacific was concerned, all the coal lands owned by that company were needed for the company's own purposes, suggesting that only in the case of a coal famine would the question arise of furnishing coal to anyone outside of the corporation.

One of the fishermen threw away the butt of a lighted cigar and in a moment the entire boat was enveloped in flames.

Capt. Joseph Rydan, who was in charge of the launch, went overboard and was soon followed by the nineteen other men. Their cries brought several boats to their rescue. It was said, however, that several boats refused to offer assistance unless they received money for their work. Capt. BUSINESS BEFORE DOMINION HOUSE

Only Small Amount of Government Legislation Remains to Be Introduced.

Ottawa, Ont., June 15.—In the Commons this morning Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he knew of no other government legislation to be introduced this session apart from possible amendments to the railway act and the criminal code bill to amend the judges' act for the trial of cases arising in the territories and a bill to correct certain errors in the translation of the revised statutes.

In reply to a question by Major Fowler, Hon. G. Graham said the receipts of the Intercolonial for the year ending March 31 were $9,173,558 and the working expenses $9,157,435. The capital expenditure during the same period was $4,382,494. The receipts for April fell $275 short of the working expenses.

A bill to amend the Yukon Placer Mining act was read a third time. It was also a bill authorizing the payment to the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta of a part of the assurance fund under the Land Titles act of 1894.

The house then took up the consideration of an amendment to the Yukon act, which provides for an elective council of ten members.

I. O. O. F. ELECTIONS.

Toronto, Ont., June 15.—The prospects of a warm fight for the post of supreme chief ranger of the I. O. O. F. increase with the approach of the opening of the supreme court meeting to-morrow. E. G. Stevens, the present supreme ranger, and Harry Collins, the present supreme treasurer, who is after a higher position, each have their followers in the ranks of the supreme court, while Mr. Collins does not admit that he is connected with any ticket. It is whispered around the corridors of the Foresters' temple that there will be an open contest for the election of the supreme candidate for every office against the present executive.

TWO THINGS NECESSARY.

SHEARWATER IS BACK TO PORT
SLOOP HAD ROUGH TRIP FROM 'FRISCO

No Trace of Silberhorn's Crew Found by the Vessel.

After an absence of nearly five months, spent in cruising southern waters and conducting an unsuccessful search for survivors of the lost barque Silberhorn, H. M. S. Shearwater returned to port this morning.

Leaving San Francisco on Wednesday last the Shearwater ran into very heavy weather with strong southwesterly gales and reached Esquimalt to-day with very little coal or water left. Sails, with which the sloop is equipped for favorable weather, were utilized and the Shearwater made port just as the coal in her bunkers and the water in her tanks were getting to an exceptionally low ebb.

If H. M. S. Algerine arrives from Yokohama before the 10th June it is expected that she will go north to patrol the Behring sea relieving the Shearwater from that service. The Algerine may or may not be on the way at present, word of her whereabouts having been received at the Esquimalt naval station.

The Shearwater left Esquimalt on January 27th and reached San Diego on February 2nd, leaving the latter port on February 6th for Acapulco.

At Acapulco the Shearwater coaled and sailed for Corinto the 17th. Arriving at Corinto, where plague was reported, on February 21st the Shearwater coaled and sailed on the 23rd for Panama. Panama was reached on the 26th where the sloop stayed until the 29th, when she proceeded to Callao, arriving on March 3rd. The Shearwater then proceeded to Iquique via Areca, the quarantine port of the country, and finally to Valparaiso. At Valparaiso orders were received to make a search in the vicinity of the island of Juan de Fernandez and the sloop left on March 31st, arriving at Robinson Crusoe's island on April 3rd. About one hundred inhabitants were found living on the locale of Defoe's story and inquiries from these people failed to elicit any information regarding the lost Silberhorn.

Goatskins were brought off by the natives of the islands and goats fresh meat which they heartily enjoyed. A small goat, "Nancy," was obtained there as a mascot and is one of the most honored members of the ship's company. Eighty miles in a southwesterly direction from Juan de Fernandez lies the Mas-a-Fura island, near which group the missing ship, months ago reported seeing a burning ship, and to this place the Shearwater proceeded. On the main island a cannery plant, run by white people, where lobsters and other crustaceans were turned into table delicacies, was discovered. Half a dozen men with their wives and families were running the plant, which was a very small affair. The members of this little settlement traded curios and vegetables for soap, refusing money, but taking what they could get of the commodities which their distance from civilization rendered so precious to them.

No signs of the Silberhorn's hull or of her crew could be found, and the Shearwater returned to Valparaiso, arriving on April 6th.

Two days later the sloop left home-ward bound, and made her way north by way of Coquimbo, Iquique, Callao, Corinto, Salina Cruz and Acapulco to San Francisco.

At Callao, the sloop met four Peruvian warships, and the torpedo flotilla of the American fleet. At Valparaiso she met three Chilean war vessels.

While at Iquique, southbound, the native residents invited a team from the Shearwater to oppose the local club for the next men by 38 points.

While the Shearwater was at Iquique there was no disturbance in connection with the nitrate strike. H. M. S. Sappho had left a month previous to the sloop's arrival as the trouble had practically ended.

Coming north, a call was made at San Diego, where 40 of the ship's company were the guests of Katherine Tingley's Theosophical Society at Point Loma.

A score of talking parrots and other pets were added to the noise-producing element of the mess-room on the way north, according to Lt. Bickel, a very profane parrot, who speaks only English, is the pride of the crew.

PERSONAL.

Ralph C. Bamford, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Bamford, of this city, graduated from Pennsylvania University with the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery. He graduated with very high standing and is leaving at once for home by the southern route. He hopes to practice in Victoria. During his course Dr. Bamford was also successful in athletics, getting his colors, both on the Rugby and soccer teams, and will doubtless prove an acquisition to local football.

James Thompson, local manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, is leaving to-day for the North. He will go as far as Prince Rupert and may possibly proceed further.

Jallier Allen and Constable Carlow are on duty by the police force again, and Jallier, Abbott and Constable Blackstock are away on their holidays.

Mr. Allen during his vacation visited the Sound cities and was in Tacoma when the Arion Club and the local cricketers were there, while Constable Carlow paid a visit to Vancouver.

Steamer Prospector Had Hard Trip Down Yukon River.

Seattle, June 15.—Bringing the first people from the interior of Alaska to come outside since the opening of navigation and about $2,000,000 in gold, the City of Seattle arrived in port this morning from Skagway and southeastern Alaska ports. Thirty passengers were from Fairbanks and Dawson. They have come up the Yukon river on the first boat to get through, the Prospector, which arrived in White Horse last week after a difficult trip, owing to low water. The passengers report the river the lowest in years and on several occasions it was necessary for the Prospector to tie on cables and be pulled over the mud flats.

THE LAST YEAR IN AMALGAMATED COPPER

Decreased Amount Paid in Dividends by the Corporation.

While the report of the Amalgamated Copper company for the fiscal year ending April 30th last is somewhat voluminous, and enters at much length into a discussion of the copper trade situation during the twelve months which it covers, describing with some detail the improvement work which has been effected in connection with the various subsidiary properties, it is nevertheless far from being as complete as could be desired, says Bradstreet's. It affords, for instance, no adequate statement as to the amalgamated's holdings of the stocks of the various companies which it controls or in which it is interested, nor is there any exhibition of the amounts of rates of the various dividends on such stocks received by the parent company, to say nothing of the deductions for improvement work or other items which may have been made before the net income given in the report was arrived at. Still, the general feeling in financial circles is that the report is an improvement upon the original blind-pool methods pursued by the Amalgamated's management, when, in its early years, no report whatever, or only an apology for one, was made public. The earning statement, compared with the results of the preceding year, shows that for the year ending April 30th, 1908, the net income was $6,886,557, a decrease of $7,474,842, while the dividends were $6,155,518, a decrease of $5,770,706. The surplus was $525,041, a decrease of $1,703,047, while the previous surplus was $1,428,733. The total surplus is now $12,008,824.

It will be noted in the first place that the net income given above, as compared with that for the fiscal year 1906-7, was less than one-half. In fact, for the year just ended, the amount available for dividends was equal to only 4.34 per cent. on the outstanding stock, compared with 4.2 per cent. the year before, and a little less than 6 per cent. for the fiscal year which ended April 30th, 1906. The dividends paid during the year were at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, against 7 1/2 per cent. in 1906-7. It is also stated that the companies owned wholly or in part by the Amalgamated Company produced in the calendar year 1907 about $12,000,000 of refined copper, of which amount the parent company received the benefit from something like $7,000,000 pounds. Due reference is made in the report to the policy which the company, in common with the other large copper producers, pursued in curbing the production of the mines when the decline in the price of copper, to as low as 12 or 13 cents a pound, set in in the latter part of 1907, and the subsequent return to a policy of at first running one unit of the controlled properties, to-wit, the mines and smelter of the Boston & Montana Company, to their fullest extent. Furthermore, with the disappearance of the surplus stock of copper which had accumulated, owing to the diminished demand, the mines of the different companies were in March, 1908, again put in commission and are now being operated to their full capacity. As is said above, the improvements executed upon the various mines, with a view to increasing their capacity and lowering the cost of production, are described in great detail, while it is further stated, that the continued occurrence of high-grade ores in the lower levels of the properties owned by the Amalgamated and adjacent companies tends to create confidence in the future of the entire Butte district.

SOUTH SAANICH WILL NOT DROP ITS CASE*Municipality Decides to Press Application Respecting Slaughter House.

The fight between the South Saanich council and Mould & MacFadden over the erection of a slaughter house in the municipality was again the subject of discussion at the council meeting on Saturday night, when a letter from Mould & MacFadden was received explaining the action taken by them in building, and in having slaughtered on the premises in defiance of the decision of the council.

Mould & MacFadden applied some months ago to the South Saanich council for permission to build a slaughter house on lot 77, Lake district. The council refused the permission at the request of the ratepayers, who petitioned that the application be not granted. Since then the firm went ahead with their buildings, and refused to remove them, the council resolved to take legal proceedings to have them removed, and the case is now being heard in the courts, having reached that stage where Mould & MacFadden are prevented by an injunction, pending the hearing of the case, from slaughtering.

In view that they cannot slaughter there, Mould & MacFadden are now suing for peace, and have written the letter explaining their case, which was the subject of discussion at the meeting Saturday night. The letter read that the firm had no wish to slaughter on lot 77, but had to conduct the slaughter house somewhere, and that as soon as they can find another location they will remove, but meanwhile they must slaughter somewhere.

The council will notify Mould & MacFadden that the matter is in the hands of the council's solicitors, and that they can do nothing in the matter except continue the action already commenced.

The municipality decided to avail itself of the extra power conferred upon it by the legislature at the last session, and will extend the operation of the road tax which formerly could only be obtained from males between the ages of twenty-one and fifty, who paid no other tax or assessment, but under the power conferred by the legislature the municipality can now impose a tax on all males between the ages of eighteen and sixty. Councillor Pointer introduced a motion that the power granted be exercised, which was decided upon.

Councillor Nicholson, Dunn, Mannix and Haldon were appointed to act on the Court of Revision, which is to sit on the 25th June. Reeve Quick will also by virtue of his office be a member of the court.

The secretary of the provincial exhibition again wrote asking what the council would do in regard to a grant to the agricultural fair this year.

The matter was ordered to stand over till the estimates are taken up for the year.

J. L. Arnsen, who wrote to the council in connection with the clearing out of the water course below his property, will be replied to that when he follows the correct procedure under the Water Courses and Ditches Act then the council will be able to act on the matter.

William H. Peter, 33 Harriett road, wrote that the assessment on his two lots, 22 and 23, was too high. He also asked permission to dig up a certain graded roadway to lay water pipes. The request was granted.

A petition was received from thirty owners in the neighborhood of section 14, range 2, east, that the road along the north line of that section be straightened in order that some of the owners may get an outlet. The request will be referred to the road superintendent for an estimate of cost.

The road superintendent's report for the month of May showed the following amounts paid for road work: Ward one, $518.19; Ward two, $128.80; Ward three, $110.75; Ward four, $124.25; Ward five, $128.30. Total, $1,090.29.

Existing canneries must secure a license, costing $50 per annum.

A permit for a new establishment will only be issued after a favorable report as to its sanitary conditions.

The annual fee for a salmon net is $5. The maximum length is to be 300 yards and depth 60 meshes; size of mesh, seven inches, extension measure, or in sockeye, salmon nets five and three-quarter inches, extension measure.

Salmon under three pounds must be returned to the water. Trout under three pounds cannot be bought, sold or exposed for sale in the province.

No person shall fish for sockeye salmon above the New Westminster bridge on the Fraser, unless under authority of a special license, which shall be issued only to a British subject, actually resident on either side of the Fraser river; above, that is, east of the New Westminster bridge.

Such license to bear conspicuously stamped across its face: "This license valid between New Westminster bridge and Mission bridge." Closed times for salmon shall be: From Saturday at 6 a. m. to Sunday at 12 midnight in all waters of British Columbia south of the 51st parallel of north latitude, and in the waters of the Skeena river and its estuary north of the limit named salmon fishing with nets is strictly prohibited.

But salmon traps and nets of Gonzales Point, Vancouver Island, are excluded from this prohibition. In the years 1908, 1910, 1911, 1912, 1914, 1915 and 1916, known as "small run years" or "off years," this weekly close time shall be six hours longer, viz:

From Saturday at 6 a. m. to Monday at 6 a. m., in that part of the Fraser river between the New Westminster bridge and Mission bridge.

The taking of herring from March 1st to April 30th, both days inclusive, is prohibited, but the close season may commence at an earlier date under authority of the district inspector of fisheries in any locality in which that officer may decide that such prohibition is necessary in order to protect spawning herring.

The taking of halibut from March 1st to March 31st, both days inclusive, is prohibited. The tidal boundaries in rivers specified below shall be defined as follows:

POSSIBILITIES OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY

Signor Marconi's Efforts to Send Messages Both Ways at Once.

That wireless telegraphy has not yet exhausted its store of wonders and surprises was proved to a London Daily Chronicle representative in an interesting talk with Mr. Marconi at his London office, according to latest mail advices from England.

One approaches this man who, while yet in his youth, revolutionized telegraphy, in the expectation of meeting a typical and rather uncanny wizard, who has but to wave his hands to work all manner of wonders by an unseen force. But there is nothing uncanny.

And nothing to suggest study and midnight oil, about the tall, athletic, well-groomed young man, who greets you in breezy fashion, and in such perfect English that his Italian name is forgotten, and you remember only that his mother was Irish.

"Oh, yes," he said, "I'll tell you what I'm trying to do, and what are my hopes, but please don't make me seem boastful, and don't let us have too much of the I-I-I."

"Most people know all about the regular service which the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company is now maintaining across the Atlantic. It began in October last with the exchange of messages between King Edward and Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada, and we are now sending about 2,000 words across daily. The public can send messages at 75d. per word, and transmission between London and Montreal, inclusive of land rates. Messages must be handed in at the London offices of the company, Waterloo House, York buildings, Adelphi, or at 1724, Notre Dame street, Montreal."

"We can send twenty-four words a minute across the Atlantic, or forty-eight when we can use the duplex system. But at present we can only send messages one way at a time. If an operator tried to send a message across while he was receiving one there would be great confusion, one man firing against another"—and Mr. Marconi waved his hand to suggest a grand collision of language in mid-Atlantic.

"But lately I have been experimenting with apparatus which will enable us to send a message in both directions at once. The experiments have been quite successful over a distance of three or four miles at Poole, in Dorsetshire, and I anticipate equal success here long across the Atlantic."

"That is one of my latest experiments. Another is to enable a ship approaching the shore, or another ship in a fog, to determine exactly the position of the wireless station on shore, or the course of the other ship. You can see, of course, how it will help a navigator if he is able to know, not only that another ship is approaching, but the exact angle the course of that ship makes with his own."

To Most Distant Parts.

"It is perhaps a little difficult to explain the idea to the general reader, but here it is roughly"—and Mr. Marconi sketched rapidly on his blotting pad while he spoke. "We get, you see, a screen with a small hole in the center. This is turned about in the direction from which the other ship, or the shore station, is known to be telegraphing, until the ringing of a bell, caused by the waves entering the hole in the screen, shows that the exact direction from which the wave is coming has been ascertained."

"I shall be carrying out experiments on these lines in the Mersey in a few weeks. The idea is being specially welcomed by shipping authorities on the St. Lawrence river, where fog so often hinders navigation."

"At present the trans-Atlantic service from Clifden, Ireland, to Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, a distance of 2,300 miles, is our longest regular system, but I see no reason why the most distant parts should not be thus connected, and to a country like Great Britain, with her far-off colonies, the possibilities are enormous."

"In undeveloped lands, too, like Africa, its future seems assured. One of its great advantages is that there are no wires to be cut. The cutting of telegraph wires by savage or half-civilized tribes, out of ignorance or mischief, has always been a difficulty. In China, too, where we have five stations, this same point holds good, especially in view of the fact that superstitious dread of shadows falling on ancestral

NEW GRAND THEATRE

Well Known Lecturer Gave Address on True Heroism.

The large audience at the New Grand theatre on Sunday afternoon testified to the delight to see Miss Ada Murcutt on a Victorian platform again. She delivered a unique address on "True Heroism." This lady has won for herself fame by her platform style. Her style is her own and is both pleasing and attractive. With a good presence, ready wit and a vivacity that charms the listener, it is no difficulty for her to command attention.

The address yesterday was full of descriptive acts of heroes and heroism from every day life. Here and there Miss Murcutt selected known and unknown subjects, and made them tell upon the listeners. The curse of drink, the folly of drinkers, financially and morally, the advantages of a sober and industrious life, and the practice of self-denial for the good of others, met with ready response. The old land bondage and poverty of the masses, the new land folly and its consequent evils were described, and an appeal made to all citizens of noble ideals to lend their aid in making the lives and habits of the people better by use of the polls as well as in actual effect, such as the W. C. T. U. work.

Miss Murcutt announced that she had made a most successful tour of the upper country the last three months. Everywhere she had seen large gatherings and a strong determination to do the work of moral reform. The membership of the W. C. T. U. had doubled itself, many men were in the ranks as honorary members, so much so that in the coming election the reform movement will have to be reckoned with.

Miss Murcutt said she had decided to reside in British Columbia, and had actually bought fruit land in Okanagan as an evidence of her good faith in the province. Her sister, Dr. Florence Murcutt, of Philadelphia, is with her, and will probably also settle in British Columbia.

LEVY OF TUBERCULOSIS

An active statement of the importance of one modern crusade is indicated in the acceptance of Mr. Roosevelt of the presidency of the International Congress on Tuberculosis, which is to meet in Washington from September 21st to October 12th. The president touches upon the urgency of the movement in a paragraph in his letter of acceptance, in which he points out that disease costs the United States 200,000 lives a year and the world at large a million lives a year, besides constituting a most serious handicap to material progress, prosperity and happiness. Science, Mr. Roosevelt says, has demonstrated that the disease can be stamped out, but the rapidity and completeness with which this can be accomplished depend upon the promptness with which the new doctrines about tuberculosis can be inculcated into the minds of the people, and the presence in the United States of representative workers in the cause from all countries gives an unusual opportunity for accelerating the educational part of the programme.

WHICH IS RESPONSIBLE?

We have no doubt whatever that Senator MacDonald, as a member of the Upper and Independent Legislative Chamber, endeavors to take an unbiased view of all controversial matters that arise at Ottawa. Yet we cannot but think that in the letter published elsewhere the Senator displays just a trifle of inclination towards the Conservative point of view. He says that the government had brought down its bills earlier in the session, business might have been expedited. The answer to this criticism was given by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the House of Commons a few days ago. The Premier pointed out that the important thing, the absolutely necessary thing, for the government to do is to get through supply in order that public business may not suffer and that the servants of the country may receive their pay in due season. The opposition has been moving for so many returns and making such long speeches in formulating its resolutions that the transaction of business has been practically impossible. There is no question whatever as to the objective of the opposition leaders in thus blocking the business of the House. They took objection to the Aylesworth Election Bill and frankly stated that they would obstruct until it was withdrawn. The particular clause of this measure to which strong objection was taken applied only to the provinces of Manitoba and British Columbia. The reasons why these clauses were put in the bill were stated by the Minister of Justice. He had sufficient evidence to convince him that the voters' lists as compiled by officials of Conservative governments in these two provinces were manipulated for partisan purposes. We know that the Minister was justified in his position by facts brought out both in Manitoba and British Columbia. It is true that the federal government in repealing the Franchise Act which came into its possession on assuming office, a measure which it might have retained and put to effective partisan uses in all Dominion elections. But the government in pursuing this fair course reserved to itself the right to adopt a federal franchise act and to prepare federal voters' lists in any or all of the provinces if circumstances in the future justified such a policy. There is no question that the Dominion government has this right. It is only a question whether it is expedient to assert the right. When the MacDonald government adopted a franchise law applicable to all the provinces Senator MacDonald supported it in its position. In doing this the Senator must have been convinced that he was doing the right thing. The present government does not propose to make its elections law general, because it recognizes that the lists in all the provinces with the exception of two named are absolutely fair as between the parties and calculated to give a fair expression of public opinion. That is all the clauses applicable to Manitoba and British Columbia are intended to do. Would it be consistent upon the part of Senator MacDonald, as he supported the old Dominion Franchise Act, to oppose the new one?

The truth appears to be that the opposition has more than one object in obstructing public business. In the attainment of these objects it cares not whether the business of the country be discharged or not. Its members are moving resolutions and asking for papers with the idea of conveying an impression that the administration of the departments is corrupt. In not a single instance has an investigation borne out the allegations, but the object is to have the charges published in the organs in the hope of deceiving the public. That is the policy of the Conservative party. It is the policy upon which it will appeal to the country. Can any one doubt what the result of such an appeal will be, coming out of the mouth of a man like Foster, who is unquestionably the leading spirit in the Conservative party?

PURE MR. FOSTER.

The Ottawa Free Press of a recent date says that when Sir Frederick Borden made the obvious reply to the personal attack by Hon. George E. Foster that the member for North Toronto was the last man in the world who was entitled to pose as a disciple of personal or commercial morality, the ex-Finance Minister at once got hot under the collar and, in the words of "Hansard," said that the charge that he had used trust funds for his own personal benefit, or intended benefit, was "absolutely untrue."

The best comment upon that assertion is made by the Montreal Star, which cannot be accused of sympathy with Sir Frederick Borden or with any other Liberal. The Star says:

"Now, it was surely the irony of fate that George E. Foster was chosen to make such a charge on behalf of the opposition. In every tone of his voice he must have reminded Sir Frederick of the obvious retort which the minister did make when he arose. Mr. Foster, too, was appointed not so long ago to a position of trust. He was, indeed, made the manager of a Trust Company. Furthermore, the greater part of the money which the Trust Company had in trust was the 'trust fund' of the widow of the orphan." "That is, the funds of an insurance society. Yet, Mr. Foster used his powers in this position of trust to make a profit for himself out of the use of these trust funds."

Here we had Satan rebuking sin. Mr. Foster arraigns Sir Frederick Borden for doing, in the spirit of the thing, very much what he had done himself. Sir Frederick, being human—quite human, indeed—retorted upon Mr. Foster by a reference to this patent fact; and much of the force of the Fosterian charge was thereby lost. This illustrates the unfortunate position of the opposition, with regard to several of their most forward spokesmen. Their own records mine the ground from beneath their feet when they arise to assail the mischievous practices of the government. They are in an entirely different position from the little band of Liberal abolitionists, who, session after session, pounded the Conservative administrations prior to 1896 for their misdeeds. It may have been lack of opportunity or whatnot; but the fact remained that the critics of that day had not been notoriously guilty of the very crimes which they charged against the then ministers. The whole incident illustrates the political folly of either party permitting itself to be saddled with such representatives.

No Liberal newspaper has been half as severe upon the late manager of the Union Trust Company as this organ of the man who financed the Conservative party in the last two general elections.

THE WATER PROBLEM.

When our choleric friend Major Dupont takes his pen in hand he generally says something that will attract attention. A few days ago this haughty, arbitrary man (we hope he will pardon the abbreviation), suggested a heroic plan for the abatement of the motor car nuisance. The Major's idea as expounded with military bluntness and precision was that one of the offenders against the law, who had declared his intention of offending again because he believed the law to be unjust, should be taken in hand by the municipal "headman" and soundly spanked. We are not in a position to speak with knowledge, but surmise there must have been animus behind this suggestion of the head of the aristocratic colonial house of Dupont. It may be that the position of affairs as between the Duponts and the Todds is akin to the relations between the Capulets and the Montagues, two equally ancient houses.

But we stray from the subject. Major Dupont's spleenetic ideas on the question of spanking have expanded. He wants the citizens of Victoria dealt with collectively after the manner suggested in respect of one of Victoria's leading citizens. The Major says we have made fools of ourselves in our handling of municipal questions and are indubitably incapable of self-government. Consequently a "monster petition" must be presented to the legislature, headed doubtless by the name of the noble house of Dupont, praying that the power of self-government be taken away and rule by commissioners of three practical, capable men be substituted therefor. Why must Victoria be subjected to this indignity and humiliation? Because we have failed to deal intelligently with the water problem. Well, we have come short of the highest measure of intelligence in our handling of the question. It must be in all candor be confessed. But is Major Dupont free from all blame in the matter? Year after year a yearning cry has gone up for men of influence, of power, of intelligence, of genius—men who know how to do things and who are not afraid to do them—to come forth from their stolid seclusion and help to make straight the ways of our municipal affairs; but there has been no response. The Major and his friends prefer to sit in the windows of the Union Club and criticize the works of the despised creatures who serve the city "for the paltry emoluments of office." They virtually say the ways of the common people are not their ways—that popular government is a failure—that the rule of the autocracy as they have it in the army, in the navy, in India and in Russia, is the only form of government possessing the elements of permanency and efficiency. Verily, Major, you have fallen upon evil days, because it is a fact that everywhere the world is losing its reverence for the autocrat and the despot. Democracy has got both its hands upon the plough, both its feet in the furrow, and it will neither let go nor turn back. You need not go to the trouble of drawing up that petition. If presented to the legislature, it might be treated as a joke, and that would be a severe blow to the dignity of a man whose signature was at its head. In these degenerate days there is but one way for a man to become an active, regenerating force in public affairs. He must come down from his pedestal, take off his coat, and become a worker. Drones fulfill a useful purpose in the hive up to a certain point. When they become mere critics of the doings of others, what happens to them?

It is agreed that past councils in the city of Victoria have been dilatory in dealing with the matter of water supply. They did not realize that the city was growing at a rapid rate and that every year the crisis was becoming more acute. But now one of the foremost engineers on the continent has been engaged, and the civic authorities are acting upon his advice. There are some who are sceptical respecting the qualifications of Mr. Adams. It is true, but his record as a professional man is sufficient to justify the course of the council and to engender a lively hope that next year, at the latest, we shall have an ample supply of water. If the city were placed in the hands of commissioners to-morrow nothing more could be done than has been done. The situation to-day confirms the judgment of Mr. Adams and other authorities that the principal reason for the shortage of water is the tattered, rule of thumb system of distribution. There is an abundance of water in the reservoir. The mains from the lake and the pipes radiating therefrom come very far short of the demands made upon them. That, and not lack of water in Elk Lake, is the cause of the shortage. It is that weakness of the council, on the recommendation of Mr. Adams, is now removing. If all the waters of Goldstream were turned into the city pipes under present conditions there would still be a shortage of water. So that, if events should demonstrate that the reputation of Engineer Adams is merely a thing upon paper and Elk Lake should be drained dry by the increased draft put upon it, as authorities contend it will be, most of the work at present being done would be necessary under any circumstances. As it is clear we must year, why not make the best of the 10,000 occupied up since 1900 situation?

Ottawa Free Press: The cost of the two investigations into the anti-Oriental riot at Vancouver will, including the payments of compensation to the Japanese and Chinese, reach probably $50,000. As the riot only lasted five hours, this is at the rate of $10,000 an hour, a good deal too much for the people of Canada to pay for the amusement of a crowd of hoodlums.

"Mack" in Toronto Saturday Night, dealing with the blockade of business in the House of Commons, says: "Instead of turning to something statesmanlike that would fire the imagination of a young country, the Ottawa opposition, presumably listening to Mr. Foster, fiddles with a programme that is petty and pennywise."

While boards of trade and other public bodies are giving prominence to matters more or less unimportant, is it not surprising that the position which the province shall occupy at the great Alaska-Yukon exhibition, to be held in Seattle next year, is not taken up and dealt with in a manner befitting its importance?

It is learned through private advices from Tokio that Mr. R. L. Drury is greatly pleased with his reception by the Japanese government officials, and that he has no doubt of the success of his mission.

As will be seen in the advertising columns, Stewart Williams will sell a quantity of household furniture to-morrow at 2:30 at Mr. Llewellyn's house, Prospect street, after which at 4:30 they will dispose of his well known soap Marlan, under the hammer, at Oak Bay boat house.

While answering a call to a chimney fire on Princess street, Chief Watson, of the fire brigade, had an exciting experience. As a result of the wheels of his buggy, catching in the car track, the rig was badly smashed, its occupants, the chief and Assistant Chief McDowell being thrown out onto the roadway. Both escaped injury.

What Other People Think

THE WATER SUPPLY.

To the Editor:—The water supply for the city of Victoria is a serious question, and one that should be dealt with as early as possible. In Australia they have their reservoirs fenced in so as to keep clean and protected. These reservoirs are several miles out from the city, and an abundance of good, pure water is supplied to all. What we need is a water works committee, to be appointed to go into the matter and ascertain and advise the best means for supplying the city. The surroundings and situation of Victoria could never be better for a real good water supply, which is so greatly necessary for a growing and expanding city. The shortage of water is hampering the progress of the city commercially and otherwise. It is hampering the commercial and industrial businesses of Victoria. It is useless to have a "Dewdney Association" and its people to settle here, and when they come and buy land or lots and start gardening to beautify the city surroundings, and to grow produce for the local market, and then find that the water supply is cut off. This is a great drawback to the whole community, and it is to be hoped that the city will not so loose and so much overlooked. It is to be hoped that the citizens of Victoria, in conjunction with his worship the mayor, will call a public meeting and appoint a committee to petition parliament to build or construct a waterworks such as Victoria will be proud of, and which will do much to build up and expand our city, and to protect property from the fierce ravages of fire which have been so frequent during the dry summer months of our land.

CLASSICAL V. PRACTICAL IN EDUCATION.

To the Editor:—I was much interested in reading the letter to the Editor by Mr. McKay, of Halifax, N. S., which appeared in your issue of Friday, 12th inst. We out here in the West are not brought very closely into contact with the trend of educational thought and development of recent years, and it is interesting to learn of these things from those who are more intimately in touch with them. It would have been interesting still had Mr. McKay gone more fully into particulars so that even the uninitiated might more clearly understand the force and import of the fight which educationalists throughout the world are now waging. He has been waging of late years to maintain the classical ideals in education on the one hand and the industrial or practical on the other.

The disciples of the classical school of thought scorn the idea of a man being educated without a knowledge of Greek and Latin. The study of no other subject gives so much mental training, they tell us, as does Latin or Greek; from the study of these comes the mental development, the keenness of intellect, the mental power which enables us to think, to reason, to understand and to express, which distinguishes the man of trained and properly developed intellect from the untrained. Education, they tell us, is not to fit a man to make money or to engage in any industrial line of work, but solely to create and develop mental power. These would, therefore, make Latin a compulsory study in all our high schools and colleges, and would even have it taught in the higher grades of the public schools. The devotees of the classical ideal, however, are somewhat arrogant; they apparently are dead sure they are right, and are, in many instances, somewhat supercilious toward those who differ with them in opinion.

On the other hand are those who preach the doctrine of the industrial or practical in education. These say that in our public and high schools, at least, if not in our colleges as well, students should be taught that which is going to be of much practical use to them in after life. Instead of Latin or Greek they would substitute French or German, a living instead of a dead language, as something more practical which might at some time be of practical use to nearly everyone. In the place of Cicero, Virgil, Homer, and the like they would use Shakespeare, Milton and the other great English classics, as equally well calculated to promote mental development, besides giving a mastery of our own language, a language now spoken by many times the number of people that ever used the speech of Greece and Rome in their palmy days, and which is increasing and spreading more rapidly than any other language spoken by mankind. These say that a boy or girl who enters a high school who may never get beyond the first year or two should not be required to study Latin, that it ought not to be compulsory, that such pupils never get beyond the drudgery of it, never reach the stage where they see its beauties or receive its benefits, and that, therefore, the time of such pupils might more profitably be devoted to subjects more practical and more attractive to the average student. These magnify the industrial, the practical subjects. They want science, economics, sociology, the science of government, to take the place of what they sometimes term the dry-bones of the classical studies.

These subjects are of special interest to us in British Columbia just now, or ought to be, as we are yet in the creative period of our educational development. I doubt if there be anywhere the classical or the industrial? Thus far we have followed the classical in our high school course, modified to some extent, because we have included French in that course. But outside of those who take the commercial course, Latin is compulsory with all high school students, and all with the exception of a few, must pass high school examinations. Are we wise in this? In Nova Scotia the practical ideals have thus far prevailed, as there Latin is not compulsory with high school students and no more than half the students take it, but the classical element has of late years put up a strong fight to have it made a compulsory subject. The result has been that the royal has taken place on the platform, in the press, and at educational gatherings, between the two. At one public discussion of this question presided over by the Lieutenant Governor, several college professors, a judge, a senator and several teachers. The fight is still on, and it waxed hot at times, for Nova Scotians are all deeply interested in educational questions.

In Manitoba and the two adjoining provinces Latin is not compulsory, while Mr. McKay, in his interview, reports that in the United States he found the trend decidedly away from the classical and toward the industrial in education. There the tide is running very strongly in the direction of Latin. The English universities, on the other hand, with their characteristic adherence to mediaeval traditions, still keep the classics in the forefront, and a suggestion to an Oxford or Cambridge don that these institutions should adopt the policy of granting degrees without a knowledge of Latin and Greek might bring upon him an attack of apoplexy.

The influence of written examinations upon the school life of our students and the wisdom or advisability of making these the supreme and only test of success in their studies, to which Mr. McKay refers in his interview, is an interesting subject and invites discussion, but that must be deferred till a more convenient season.

In conclusion, let me repeat the question as to the ideal we should adhere to in shaping our future high school and university policy: Shall it be the classical or the practical, the English or the American?

THE DEADLOCK.

To the Editor:—It is very difficult for the public to understand from newspaper reports and leading articles which party is to blame for the deadlock. Whether I give an unbiased opinion on the subject I leave you to judge. I "set naught down in malice."

For over thirty years I have been going to Ottawa. I have not known Liberal or Conservative governments ready with the business of the country. A few days ago Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced a number of government measures still to come down—and that after parliament has been in session nearly seven months. This will lengthen the session still more.

A great contest is going on over the proposed election bill and voters' lists. It will be well known to you, sir, that the Conservative government some years ago adopted a federal franchise and electoral lists, which policy was condemned by the Liberal party, and on coming into office adopted the provincial franchise and electoral lists, under which two federal elections were held without, as far as I know, any complaint of unfairness. Now the Liberal government seek to alter and amend the electoral lists of Manitoba and British Columbia—and alter the electoral boundaries which, they say, overlap.

Liberal government seek to alter and amend the electoral lists of Manitoba and British Columbia—and alter the electoral boundaries which, they say, overlap. The Liberal is a Liberal and a Conservative is a Conservative. Placing voters this side or that side of a given line does not alter their politics. This interference with the provincial lists already established and previously adopted, the Conservative party strongly object, and use the only lever strongly against the Liberal party. This is one of the chief causes of the deadlock. The Conservative party in the matter for returns touching expenditure of public money, and public contracts, sales or grants of lands, and other matters, and thwarted in their undoubted rights. Hence long discussions and much delay, all tending to lengthen the session. I admit that the Conservative speeches are unnecessarily long.

Sir Richard Cartwright said a few days ago that members are entitled to full information asked for, but Mr. Fielding says contrary. If the government will, without refusal of discussion, agree to bring down all public information asked for it would take the wind out of the sails of the opposition and greatly shorten the session. All the transactions of the government of the day should be clean and open to investigation at any time. This can be had by adopting the competitive contract system and abolishing middlemen and preferential lists of favorites. I think you will see the right force of refusing supply until returns withheld are brought in and the election bill modified. To hold the subject down, it amounts to this: If the government drop the objectionable portion of the election bill and bring down returns asked for on public expenditure and on public affairs generally, there will be no opposition, and estimates will go through easily. In committee of the whole the opposition members speak too often and too long—and one side is as bad as the other in this respect. The parliamentary rule which allows a member to speak as often as he likes, even for a thousand times, should be amended. This would expedite business. W. J. MACDONALD.

VICTORIA PLAYED A FAST GAME AT VANCOUVER

The Local Players Made Good Showing With Opponents.

After a game struggle at Recreation Park Saturday afternoon, the Victoria lacrosse team met defeat at the hands of Vancouver by a score of 6 goals to 3. The Vancouverers were a very much surprised bunch of players, for they had anticipated an easy victory, and had to play to the limit to win, the score at the end of the third quarter being 4 goals to 3 in their favor. The team work of Victoria was the noticeable part of their work, and the way they fooled the Vancouverers shows that with a little more experience they will take a lot of beating.

The showing made by the Vancouver was a great disappointment to their supporters, as their fielding was poor and the home team did not get to work until the last quarter. The working Victoria players were in better condition than the others, and they set a hot pace from the start, Cessford finding the net in 8 minutes. Godfrey equalized 4 minutes later.

At the end of the first quarter, the score stood 1 all, and at half time it was 2-1 in favor of Vancouver. In the third quarter both teams scored twice, making the tally 4-3 in favor of Vancouver. W. Fairall, Cessford, Roskamp, Hancock, Morris, Dewar and Lorimer played a hard game for Victoria, and Johnston was cool and reliable in goal. Wells, Gray and Frank Miller handled the match firmly, and ruled off a number of men for infractions of the rules. The summary of games follows.

Rev. G. K. B. Adams Occupied Pulpit for the Last Time.

Rev. G. K. B. Adams, of the Metropolitan Methodist church, closed his four years' pastorate of that church. He will remain in the city for a week longer, leaving a week from Tuesday for Winnipeg to take charge of Young church in that city.

On Monday evening a week from to-night, a farewell gathering is to be held in the Metropolitan church when the congregation and friends will gather to bid Mr. and Mrs. Adams adieu. Next Sunday the pulpit of the church will be occupied by Rev. Geo. Dean, and on the following Sunday the new pastor, Rev. T. E. Holling, will be in his place. Rev. Mr. Holling is expected to reach this city from Winnipeg a week from Thursday.

In taking farewell of the congregation last evening, Rev. Mr. Adams preached to a large congregation. In parting he gave good advice, laying stress on the elements which went to make up success in a church. His four years in Victoria had been pleasant ones and had been rich in experience to himself. He had had his eyes opened during that time to the importance of missions as he never before realized the situation.

He had praise for the beautiful church building of which he said all members of the congregation should feel proud. He had taken a pride in being pastor of such a church.

The four years had been enjoyable and in leaving he could say that he loved them. He had always taken a deep interest in the young people and the large gathering of young men and women at the Sunday evening services had been an inspiration to him. He would always remember them.

As he concluded the organist played "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

At the morning service Rev. Mr. Adams outlined what was necessary to make a model church. Every member having received the blessing of salvation must go out to save others, he said. That was the secret of success.

Curtis and Harvey and Winsby Medals Won—Dupont Shoot Postponed.

The Capital Gun Club had one of their regular shoots yesterday and there was a large attendance both of participants and spectators. The chief event of the day was the shoot for the Curtis and Harvey cup, which was won by W. Becktel with a score of 43 out of 50. This was considered pretty good shooting considering that twenty of the birds were at reverse traps and unknown angles.

The Winsby medal was won for the second time by W. N. Lenfesty, who has to win it only once more when it becomes his property. At the conclusion of the principal events there were a number of sweepstakes and teatime shoots, something like 2,800 birds being trapped in all. The Dupont trophy shoot has been postponed until the next meet of the club.

The following are the scores in the two principal events:

AN EXCITING RACE FINISH

BOOKIES SUFFERED SEVERELY ON SATURDAY

Good Contests Marked Closing Day of the Meet.

A Victoria business man and Katie Bell marked the last day of the races on Saturday by breaking the bookies in the second race. When the bay mare ran in a winner in the five furlongs, the bookies could not meet the demands in cash and acknowledged themselves broke, they however, handed out an acknowledgment of their liability which they lifted in full before the final close of the meeting at 6 o'clock.

The Victoria Racing Association's meeting has been the most successful ever held here and outside the financial success of the big undertaking there have been several events throughout the week which serve to mark the meet up for all time with a red pencil. Among these are the breaking of the four furlong record of Mentry the same day in winning five straight races, the breaking of the bookies on the last day, and the success of Mahannes' Derby winner Ripper and Gabriel's Nonie Lucille.

Nonie Lucille got three first from three starts, Ripper two firsts and one third, so that the best horse on form at the meeting was Nonie Lucille.

For Saturday's races Mahannes holds the honors with three wins, Runtie, Ripper and Adirondack, while Jockey Hobart got two winners for Mahannes, and McNeil, $225, made up the first five. Mahannes won the two largest prizes, with the Derby and the seven furlongs on Saturday last.

When the bookies opened for the first running race on Saturday, Katie Bell opened at 3 to 1, and money was placed on the mare by the handful with the result that she closed at even money. The favorite Julie C. at 3 to 2, carried little money. Someone knew something and when the news spread tens and twenties were passed up to the credit of Katie Bell in a hurry with the result that the last day's racing was signalled by the breaking of the books. The next race, however, they made their shortage good, when money was placed on Lady Mirthful, for choice of the mare and Ripper, at the same price, even. Ripper carried a fair amount and the other three horses were well backed with the result on the short odds on Ripper the bookies got back a lot of their losses on Katie Bell.

Dr. Scarff again signalled his appearance in the five furlongs by running away with his rider, and making two circles of the track before the race.

The prettiest race of the day was Ripper's win in the seven furlongs and with three lengths to the bad at the back of the stand the Derby winner again showed the power he possess by setting out and steadily overtaking the leader and winning by a couple of lengths. Hobart again rode the horse, the pace of which he seems to know to an inch.

The last race of the meeting was won by Adirondack pushing his nose in front under the wire, with Hobart up. Frescuolo second, and Callis third, half a head behind.

The result of Saturday's races was as follows:

Five Furlongs—Katie Bell, Julia C., Dr. Scarff.

Seven Furlongs—Ripper, Lady C. Beauty, Our Sally.

Five Furlongs—E. C. Runtie, Weatherford, Mary Dunn.

One Mile—Lucrece, Golden Wave, Santa.

Six Furlongs—Adirondack, Frescuolo, Callis.

The driving race was won by Iowa Boy with two straight heats.

THE OAR

Seattle, Wash., June 15.—A movement has been started to make the regatta of the North Pacific Association of Oarsmen to be held on Lake Washington, July 3rd and 4th, one of the biggest events of the year. No big celebration is planned for the fourth of July and rowing enthusiasts have decided to boost the regatta along and make it a grand success. With three fine lakes in the city limits, Seattle has no rowing crew. The University of Washington eight, the champions of the Pacific coast, is the only crew to be seen on any of the lakes. The sport has been allowed to deteriorate owing to the fact that there is no way in which to make rowing pay, for it is impossible to charge for seeing the race.

A big fund is to be raised with which to entertain the visiting oarsmen during their stay in Seattle. Crews from Victoria, Vancouver, Nelson, B. C., Portland and Seattle will be represented in the regatta. The races will consist of four-oared shells, senior and junior, double sculls, single sculls and canoe races. A big effort also will be made to bring the Indian war canoes here. The officers of the association are: R. W. Wilbur, of Portland, president; P. D. Hughes, of Seattle, vice-president; H. W. Kent, of Vancouver, secretary and treasurer.

CRICKET.

NO "IMPERIAL" PLAY.
The M. C. C. has received word from the Australian board of control declining to accept the proposed game for a triangular cricket tournament in this country next year between England, Australia, and South Africa.

It is tolerably safe to assume, says the London Daily Chronicle, that, leaving aside financial and other considerations, the decision to limit the test matches to three days each has influenced the Australians in taking their present action. As M. A. Noble explained in a letter recently made public, a strong feeling prevails in Australia that in the case of the series of test matches there should be some assurance of a definite result. Though many objections can be urged against the plan of playing matches out to a finish irrespective of the time occupied, recent experience lends much force to the Australian contention. Out of the last eighteen test matches in this country—seven with Australia and three with South Africa—eleven have been left drawn.

Whether in face of what has now happened the Australians will be invited to come to this country next year remains to be seen. It was quite understood in the autumn that they would be asked to tour here in the ordinary way, but the proposal put forward in December by A. B. Bailey altered the whole position.

Mr. Bailey's original idea was that the triangular tournament should take place in turn in England, Australia and South Africa, but the scheme was quickly limited to England. The Australians let it be known very promptly that they could not possibly receive two first class touring elevens in the same season, and it gradually dawned upon people that the notion of England and Australia contending for supremacy on the matting wickets of South Africa was rather absurd.

THE RING.

WHAT JOHNSTON SAYS.
After all the gush and "enthusiasm" is the fight between "Tommy" Burns and the colored man Johnston to come off? The latter is rather severe on "Tommy." Asked by a London press representative if there was going to be a fight, he promptly replied, "Yes, and razors in the air, too, any day you like."

IMPORTANT

The attention of consumers is called to the printed inside wrappers of SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES, which will be redeemed, as stated thereon, at the Company's office at corner Princess street and McDermott avenue, Winnipeg, or 141 Water street, Vancouver.

like as far as I am concerned. That offer of a $25,000 purse from Goldfields, Nevada is all bunkum, at least as far as I am concerned. It takes two to make a match, and I have heard no intelligence about this wonderful offer. Burns said he has had a chance to show England and the world that he meant business. But instead he has shown a "yellow streak a yard wide."

"If a man's champion, why won't he defend it?" reasonably argued Johnston. He answered his own query: "Because he won't and the excuse that he can get more money in America is rot."

In conclusion he added: "To me it appears no amount of money will make Burns fight me in this country, and there is more genuine money here than in America."

YACHTING.
OCEAN RACE FOR CUP.
Hamilton, Bermuda, June 15.—The American yacht Esperanza and Zuheth left here at 2:45 on Saturday afternoon, to race to Sandy Hook lightship for a $200 cup.

The Esperanza and Zuheth took part in the recent race from Marblehead, that terminated here five days ago, and which was won by the schooner Dervish. The Esperanza is owned by J. Dabell McKee, of the Pittsburgh Atlantic Yacht Club and the Zuheth by H. Dorschner, of the New York, New Rochelle Yacht Club.

When the boats got away the weather was fine, and a good eight-knot breeze was blowing.

MISCELLANEOUS.

POLE VAULT RECORD.
Danbury, Conn., June 15.—W. R. Gray, of Yale, established a new world's record for the pole vault, clearing the bar at 12 feet, 3 1/2 inches, in the meeting held by the Danbury gymnasium in this city. The former record of 12 feet 7 1/2 inches was made recently by A. F. Gilbert, of Yale.

LAWN TENNIS.
PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS.
A match for the world's tennis championship has been arranged between Johnston and C. "Punch" Fairs for $1,000 a side. Fairs having accepted the former's challenge and waived his claim that the stakes should be $1,500 a side. It is hoped to bring off the match at the beginning of July in the Brighton, England, court, subject to the necessary arrangements.

GENERAL NOTES.

There are still several sports in Victoria whose names are "Thomas." Saturday's lacrosse game should almost convince them that the Victoria boys did the right thing in playing senior this year. The next match will take place a week from next Saturday when the home team visits New Westminster.

Kamloops is a nice place for a sanatorium for consumptives, but it did not look good to Lang, at any rate not good enough to induce him to stay there. He is back at his old place on third base, and will be welcomed by baseball enthusiasts as he is hoped that he will find something to do here so that he will not take to the country again.

There was at least one Victoria man off the field all the time in Saturday's lacrosse match. The grand stand was with the visitors, however, and some of the spectators were shouting, "Why don't you put one or two more Victoria men off the field?"

The races are over and some people are sadder and wiser. Others are spending their winnings. Katie Bell's win must have cleaned out the bookies quite a bit. It is said that they were broke at the close of the day.

Every man on the Victoria lacrosse team worked hard. They deserved to win, according to all the accounts one hears, for they had the better team and played the better game.

Vancouver is coming down to date. There has been a bicycle club organized in the city during the week just past.

It must have been easy for Vancouver to score with Victoria's point and cover point off the field at the same time.

McLachlan played the best game of the lot at Vancouver, according to the men on his own side.

Vancouver baseball team is still retaining its position at third in the Northwestern league.

The win of Garrison Cricket Club over the Victorias came as a surprise to everybody.

Bob Foster took his sponge over to Vancouver and Grahame carried the spare stick.

The annual regatta at Shawnigan Lake will be held this year on August 8th.

TOMMY BURNS LICKS BILL SQUIRES AT PARIS

Champion Lands One on Solar Plexus in Eighth Round.

Paris, June 13.—Tommy Burns, the Canadian heavyweight championship claimant, and Bill Squires, the Australian, fought eight rounds here to-night before Burns finally concluded to end the affair with a solar plexus that floored Squires.

Knowing the character of his opponent a result of his one-round victory over him in San Francisco, Burns did not extend himself at any stage of the fight. Squires fought a greatly improved battle.

For four rounds the mill was rather a quiet affair. In the fourth round Squires managed to put one over on Burns, landing a hard jolt on Tommy's nose.

This seemed to wake Burns up and in the concluding rounds he put forth a little more steam. The last two rounds witnessed some pretty hard hitting. Burns doing most of the punching.

Early in the eighth Burns waded through Squires' guard the same as though there had been none and soon got in the knockout blow.

Burns received an ovation as he left the ring.

BASEBALL AGAIN THIS WEEK END

Wille's Nine in Good Shape for Hard Game Against Nationals.

Every member of the team turned up at the practice of the Victoria baseball yesterday morning. The players had a splendid workout and with the regular practices on Tuesday and Thursday evening should be in fine form for the game against the strong Nationals on Saturday.

The team will present practically the same line-up as in the last game. Third baseman Lang has rejoined the nine and will be found in his old position. Jack Rithet will remain on first, Plummer at second and McQuade at short.

The outfield will be the same, Wattlet and Burns having fully recovered from their bruises and McConnell also being again in good shape.

Surprise, with the warm weather, is improving with every practice, and will no doubt pitch fine ball against the visitors. Robertson will do the back-stopping. Peden and Northcott will be on the bench in case of accidents.

The Nationals are considered the strongest of the various semi-professional teams on the Sound.

Among the teams they have met and defeated this season are the Vancouver league team, whom they played two games, winning one by 5 to 4 and losing the other 1 to 0. Bellingham, Blaine, the Rainiers and Ballard have also met with defeat at their hands.

With a team of this class to play against the local players will have to go some and the game should be one of the best seen on the Oak Bay grounds this season. It is hoped that the efforts of the team are appreciated by the fans and that the boys will be rewarded by having a banner crowd to see the game and cheer them on to victory.

On the following Saturday the Athletic Club nine of Seattle, also a strong team, will have a try at the boys in white and red.

Bellingham will play here on July 11th.

JAMES BAY CLUB ORGANIZING SWIMMERS

Bathing Commenced at Inner Harbor Yesterday and Will Be Continued.

At last it is announced that the Y. M. C. A. is to have a rival in swimming. Organization has already commenced under the leadership of Charles L. Cohen, an Old Country man, who is an adept at aquatic sports. This will be good news to everyone in the city who takes any interest whatever in the swimming. It is thought that there is some splendid material in the James Bay Athletic Club, and that they will be able to enter for the Vancouver Island championship with a good chance of success.

Bathing at the club house really commenced yesterday when over twenty of the boys were bathing in the inner harbor before a large number of spectators. The water there is now pretty warm, and the place being so convenient doubtless large numbers will take advantage of the opportunity to take a daily plunge even among those who do not care for racing.

VICTORIA CRICKETERS BEATEN BY GARRISON

Game Closes With Soldiers 68 Runs and one Wicket in Lead.

On their own ground on Saturday afternoon the Garrison cricket eleven defeated the Victoria team by a score of 68 runs and one wicket. The Victorias batted first and all the best men went down before Askey's bowling of wickets sent away by Hagarty. Barnacle went in very late and at the close was not out with 18 to his credit. Gooch and York did the trundling for the Victorias; but they were at times severely punished by the Garrison men. The full score was as follows:

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Homestead Regulations.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the Northwest Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person the sole head of a family, or male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for homestead entry must be made in person by the applicant at the office of the local Agent or Sub-Agent. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

An application for entry or inspection made personally at any Sub-Agent's office may be wired to the local agent by the Sub-Agent, at the expense of the applicant, and if the land applied for is vacant on receipt of the telegram such application is to have priority and the land will be held until the necessary papers to complete the transaction are received by mail.

In case of "personation" the entry will be summarily cancelled and the applicant will forfeit all priority of claim.

An application for inspection must be made in person. The applicant must be eligible for homestead entry, and only one application for inspection will be received from an individual until that application has been disposed of.

A homesteader whose entry is in good standing, and not liable to cancellation, may, subject to approval of Department, relinquish it in favor of father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister, if eligible, but to no one else, on filing declaration of abandonment.

Where an entry is summarily cancelled, or voluntarily abandoned, subsequent to institution of cancellation proceedings, the applicant for inspection will be entitled to priority right of entry.

Applicants for inspection must state in what particulars the homesteader is in default, and if subsequently the statement is found to be incorrect in material particulars, the applicant will lose any prior right of re-entry, should the land become vacant, or if entry has been granted it may be summarily cancelled.

FIGHTING JOE IN FICTION

ROBERT BARR GIVES HIM PLACE IN NOVEL

J. Martin's College Days Recalled by Canadian Writer.

A new book has been published and has just made its appearance on our book stalls, entitled the "Measure of the Rule," which though written and published in England, has a keen local interest on account of at least one of the characters, who if not the hero, is one of the heroes, says R. E. Gosnell in the Vancouver Province. The scene is laid in Canada, and the author is a Canadian. That is, he is Scotch born, but was raised in a rural district in Western Ontario, to-wit: the county of Kent, near the village of Highgate. Robert Barr long ago had a name on the Detroit Free Press as "Luke Sharpe," and was one of a brilliant coterie of writers who made that paper famous throughout the English-speaking world. Among them was Lewis, the gifted humorist and short story writer, best remembered, perhaps, on account of his inimitable "Lime Kiln Club," his famous "Boswell Family Incidents" and that parody of Western Journalism, "The Arizona Kicker." Robert Barr was a leading story and editorial writer on the Free Press, and his name was as familiar to American readers as that of Bill Nye or Bob Burdette, and his fame will be much more enduring.

Barr spoke to the "Dominion of Canada" at a dinner to Premier McBride in London last year, in Simpson's divan tavern in the Strand, and gave us a good sample of the style of his after-dinner musings, which is reflected more or less in his writings. His topics were developed to the point at which you could see his drift, then an absolute hiatus intervened, not unlike following an unbroken trail, on which it is necessary to jump from log to log to make your way. One of his stories is well worth repeating.

As a boy on the farm, when coin of the realm was exceedingly scarce, and juniors rarely saw "two bits," not to speak of calling it his own, he was consumed by a desire to see Niagara Falls. In old Sunday school library books it was classed among the Seven Wonders of the World. In his imagination it was miles high and the water came down with a roar that shook the earth to its centre. The idea grew upon him to such an extent that it possessed him an important point on Lake Erie, from which grain and lumber went to Buffalo in large quantities, was three miles distant. Thither he hid himself as the result of a final mighty resolve, needless to say without paternal consent or blessing, and signed on with the captain of a lumber barge—not the one which went down on "Lac St. Pierre"—for his passage to Buffalo at the rate of "services rendered" on route. The boy, like the after man, had his sense of humor, which the captain had not, and on the way across he played a practical joke at which the latter took mortal offence. I cannot tell the whole story as it was told, but, to make it short, the captain put him off at the first dry land, somewhere on Welland canal, and our hero had to walk the rest of the way, and finally, weary and foot-sore, without credit and less money, he arrived at the mighty falls. The pleasures of anticipation, as contrasted with the pleasures of realization were practically and—somewhat tragically illustrated. "What came out into the wilderness to see—a reed shaken in the wind?" Meditation somewhat akin to this possessed the boy, who came so far at such sacrifice. The whole thing was miserably disappointing and unsatisfying—a dead failure as a World Wonder.

"I resolved then and there," said the speaker, "that when I grew up and had money enough I would go to England and see the Falls of Lodore. Said I to myself, 'There are Falls.' Readers will remember Wordsworth's poem about how the water comes down at Lodore 'dashing and crashing and flashing and splashing.' Well, he went on to relate, he did grow up, did have money enough—notwithstanding he was a journalist of years' standing (an exception probably attributable to his Scotch lineage)—and did go to England. One of the first things he did on arriving—a notable instance of how long first impressions last—was to take the train for Cumberland. Going to a country inn, he handed his bag to the clerk and, almost breathlessly exclaimed, 'Where are the Falls of Lodore?' The clerk with that good breeding characteristic of some English clerks, feigned not to observe the excited state of his guest's mind, but with the utmost cheerfulness, said: 'If you take that road for four or five miles following the stream, you will come to the Falls of Lodore.' It was a hot, muggy afternoon, and the roads were dusty. After walking as far as it appeared to have been some years ago from Clearville to the Niagara Falls, hot and sweaty and his feet sore, he stopped, took off his shoes and socks, rolled up his trousers and waded into the stream to cool his feet and take observations. Fifty yards ahead was a large rock in the centre of the stream, with a swirl of water about it. This, he concluded, would be good anchorage with a view to getting information from passers-by. In a little while a pedestrian halted in sight, and he spoke him. In megaphone tones he shouted:

"Can you tell me, please, where are the Falls of Lodore?" A curiously perplexed look came over the stranger's face as he shouted back:

"Why, you're sitting on them."

I do not know what the application was, I do not believe there was any, but considerable zest was added to the telling by the fact that years after the story had been printed the author heard an archdeacon of a canon of some note relating it at a public dinner as original.

al. Thus, however, was another youthful illusion shattered, as would many others be if we but knew what in every instance the poets wrote about. A tourist in Ireland was doing Tom Moore's country, and at the inn at which he was staying he inquired as to the direction of the Meeting of the Waters, made famous by the author of Lallah Rookh. The clerk, obliging as all Irish clerks are, gave him exact directions; but added: "Take my advice and don't go; you'll be horribly disappointed," and in a confidential whisper: "Tom Moore was drunk when he wrote that."

But all this is sad digression. Coming back to "The Measure of the Rule" and its chief character, it is alleged to be no other than Joseph Martin, of political fame. It is rumored that that gentleman is going to England to enter politics there, and as the book is having a wide circulation there it ought not to be a bad advertisement for him. The novel has no particular plot. To some extent it is in the nature of an autobiography. William Prentiss, whom I take to be the author, has been a country school teacher, and goes to Toronto to enter the university, with the object of becoming a civil engineer. Being disappointed in gaining an entrance he went to the Normal school instead. His introduction to the principal, Dr. Darnell, a Masonic banquet, was an exceedingly amusing incident. Prentiss was unused to the vinous allurements of such functions, never having tasted wine in his life before, and was kindly piloted to his hotel afterwards by the said principal. Fancy his surprise and chagrin when he stood in the august presence of Dr. Darnell at Normal school next morning. The Ontario Normal school is a particularly strict institution, and while men and women full grown, ready to enter upon the responsible duties of teaching, met together to receive instruction, they were not allowed to look on the side or each other sat, to smile at, to speak to each other on the street, to call on each other at their lodging houses, not to speak of forming more intimate acquaintance—all on penalty of expulsion. Nevertheless, boys will be boys and girls will be girls, and the story is a network of incidents where Prentiss and his friend Sam McKurdy, supposed to be a prominent official at Ottawa, circumvented all and sundry rules and cultivated the acquaintance of two exceedingly nice girls to the sticking point of engagement and afterwards. Women and love form the warp and the weft of the same old story, since earth began, whether guided in melodrama or tragedy, and the simple annals of a Normal school romance are full of human interest by a skilled novelist.

Joseph Martin, alias John Henceforth, is introduced about the middle of the volume, though it is not hinted that he had any love affairs. He is described as a most remarkable man, who was clever in debate, knew more mathematics than the mathematical master, more about hygiene than the professor of hygiene, could touch a class better than the master of a model school or take a fall out of a lecturer in English literature. Henceforth could handle a company with an old line sergeant-major, or captain a football team against odds to victory. His tongue was bitter with invective; he loved to lead a forlorn hope; and he preferred to fight when he had to fight, with his back against the wall. John Henceforth was always in trouble, largely of his own seeking, and needed to say, was finally expelled from the institution for insubordination. Readers must judge for themselves whether Henceforth was the prototype of "Fighting Joe Martin" or not. However, I shall allow the author to picture him in his own words:

"John Henceforth is a difficult man to estimate accurately. His face, eyes and nose had something hawk-like about them, but his manners were those of a gentle dove. So quiet and unobtrusive was he that, although I lived in the same house with him, saw him every day at meals, heard him in the class, I had no suspicion of his quality until my attention was called to him by another. But now, casting back over the period of our acquaintance, I wonder why I had passed him by as being of no particular account in our lives. I found myself unable to say definitely whether I liked or disliked him. I do not think that envy of his undoubted capacity, his marvellous knowledge, and his almost uncanny skill in debate, alloyed my feelings toward him. In a controversy John Henceforth could silence any opponent except Dr. Darnell, who never knew when he was beaten, but Henceforth knew it, as did all the rest of us, and when that moment came, John Henceforth would sit back in his seat and smile, saying nothing further, but always Dr. Darnell's storm on in a hopeless endeavor to bluster him into the wrong. John Henceforth could silence an antagonist, but never convince him or make him his friend. There was something in Henceforth's personality which caused those opposed to him to become his bitter enemies, despite the hard politeness of politeness which one could never scratch off or get below to the real man. Only once have I seen him discomfited, and that to the joy of the class, was done by Dr. Darnell. Henceforth had a wit of a corrosive, biting sort, which left its victim sour and revengeful, but he had no sense of humor and there Dr. Darnell was his superior. The young man was naturally a rebel, impatient under restriction, a contemner of law, but these qualities would not have told against him with the class had he possessed any human sympathy."

The point made against Henceforth by Dr. Darnell was so good that I must give it, but space will not permit of doing it in the author's language. One of the regulations of the Normal school under which the male students chafed was that requiring military drill on Saturday. Naturally the students wanted Saturday to themselves. They evaded this as other rules at times, but on one Saturday when ingenuity had apparently exhausted itself a first class drill master got his company mixed up cunningly with the others, completely breaking up the formation. Dr. Darnell, seeing the confusion, ordered the awkward squad to stand at ease under the balcony, sending the other companies far afield so as to be out of danger. Then turning his attention to the former, after a lecture, gave the words of command: "Shut! right about face! quick march!" Off they started towards a distant fence in the direction of the city. "Now," said Henceforth, "If the Dr. don't say 'halt,' those who have the courage follow me." The principal forgot to halt them and over the fence they went into the city and were not seen again that day. The laugh was on Dr. Darnell.

On Monday morning Henceforth was called to account for the incident of the previous Saturday. Unabashed, he pleaded that he was bound to obey orders and as the command to "halt" had not been given there was nothing to do but go on.

Henceforth was completely nonplussed and answered not again.

"In writing of John Henceforth at the present time," continues the author, "who probably has not seen him since the expulsion referred to, 'I labor under the advantage, or disadvantage, whichever it may be, of knowing what he has done with his life so far. Intermittently I have followed his career in the newspapers, and everywhere he has been the stormy petrel of his time and place. If he had settled in a Quaker neighborhood, he would have had the brethren at variance within six weeks. He became almost the legal light of his country, and the word 'almost' fits him better than any other in the language. He almost invariably loses his cases before a jury, and wins them with the judges of the higher courts upon appeal. In politics he has led his party to victory over obstacles that appeared insurmountable, only to be crushed later by his own colleagues. Never has he attained the height of his ambition in either his profession or in politics. He has quarrelled with one party, joined the other, and defeated the victors in turn, although his old followers fought him with a bitterness which most men feel when combating one whom they consider a traitor."

"He is always a leader of those in opposition when he brings them into power. He has done things which have caused his name to be cabled around the world, and has deluded sage newspapers in predicting that here was the coming man. When he is cast down, but never discouraged, he begins again at the bottom. There is one thing with all his knowledge which he has never learned, and probably never can learn, and that is the slow, irresistible, glacier-like force of the commonplace man whom he despises. On every supreme occasion they have crushed him. He has the cleverness of a thousand ordinary men condensed in his anatomy, yet he could never conceal from the thousand his disdain of them, and their dull weight always overcame his adroitness. Unsuccessful, but undismayed, he has moved from place to place, rapidly becoming the leading man in each locality wherever he stationed himself, filling with alarm the party to which he was opposed, with the result notorious in its completeness. Where he is to-day I have not the least notion, but I never open a morning paper without expecting to come across his name. I would like to meet him again, now that the silver is in our hair, and learn whether the incandescent lava under the exterior of ice has cooled to any appreciable extent. A friendless man, I take him to be, lacking some one ingredient in his nature which would have made him a hero of the world, for his clear-sighted, coldly selfish view of life entitled him to a place he has never attained, or at least never held for more than a day at a time. I am handicapped in writing of him, because not once have I been privileged to hear an unbiased opinion of him, although I have met those who knew him both in Europe and America, but whenever his name was mentioned, whether they belonged to his party or the opposition, such rancor was aroused that I usually got nothing but lurid profanity. He is a man not to be ignored, and I can imagine his quiet, incisive voice from the body of a public meeting being the precursor of a riot. Something in his tonorous virulent antagonism in the human race."

I dare not quote more for fear of incurring penalties under the provisions of the copyright law, so that those who wish to know more must read the book. I cannot, however, leave the subject without referring to another incident in which Henceforth took a conspicuous part. It, in fact, was the climax of his Normal school career. There was in attendance at this particular session "a loose-jointed, ungainly creature," by name Hezekiah Crump, who hailed from some very rural district, bucolic in attire, gauche in manners, made by nature to be the butt of his fellows. He did not elude his fate among the Normalites, and was glad to escape from their companionship on all possible occasions. Here the better side of Henceforth showed forth, inasmuch as he took Crump under his wing and protected him against the shafts of the enemy, and won in return that mute admiration which some dumb animals give to those who are kind to them. Crump was thereafter safe from jibe and sneer, as his conferees dreaded the tongue of Henceforth in his defence. He was, however, on one occasion sent up to teach a lesson in anatomy to the pupils of the model school, a body of educated imps who made the existence of every Normalite, who had to take turns in teaching the various lessons to them, a very hell, a sort of natural revenge for being practised upon by 'prentice hands. Crump failed so ignominiously in the effort, and was made such a "monkey" of by the pupils, that he fled the place and returned home in complete self-abasement. Now, Crump was poverty-stricken, worked to pay his board, and was most times at the point of starvation. He had ambitions in life. He wanted to teach school in his own poor neighborhood, where the people had struggled to put up a schoolhouse. Another was to own a copy of an encyclopedia, to read which he haunted the book stores. Crump had a good, simple old mother who doted on him and waited to welcome him home as the hero returning from the wars. She knew nothing of the inscrutability of Normal school life, or the depth of devotion to which Model school pupils could go. To her Hezekiah was all in all and everybody in her little world. Henceforth knew this, and he made his speech to his fellows next day after Crump's decamp-ment, in which he proposed to have a testimonial, which he had already prepared, signed by all the Normalites, pass the hat for a subscription with which to buy the envied set of the Britannica, and take the next train for Crump's home—to arrive ahead, as the poor fellow had to walk—and there present him in view of that dear old mother and the neighbors with the "tokens of esteem," retrieving his lost world and making him the hero his mother supposed him to be. All of this was done. Henceforth had already irretrievably broken all the rules of the institution, expulsion being inevitable, and this decision to go away without permission was simply compounding his felonies. Among other things, in finishing up the lesson on anatomy left uncompleted by Crump, he mercilessly laid various rulers on the backs of the pupils, locating in a very practical way not likely to be forgotten all the muscles, repeating one by one their names in Latin vernacular as he went on. The use of corporal punishment was one of the seven mortal sins, and strictly forbidden. Henceforth, therefore, set out with his encyclopedia, his testimonial scroll, "a blazonry of scarlet and gold and German lettering," to Hezekiah's home—in defiance of rules and law, with flying colors—a denouement which raised him greatly in the estimation of the whole school, and, if the story be true, ought to count more for him on the day of judgment than the repeal of the separate school law in Manitoba or the defeat of the old-time government in British Columbia.

HEAVY FOGS DELAYED

TEES ON WEST COAST

Steamship Took Nearly Three Hundred Indians to Rivers' Inlet.

On her trip south from Rivers Inlet and Quatsino the steamship Tees, Capt. Townsend, which arrived in port this morning, encountered much fog, particularly off Deluete, where she was forced to reduce her speed for several hours. Coming up the strait the Tees made slow progress, and was several hours later reaching port than was anticipated.

Northbound the Tees picked up 224 adult Indians and 30 children, and took them to Rivers Inlet, where they were distributed among the canneries. This year the Indians are a week early in arriving at the inlet, where fishing is not expected to commence until after the 20th of the month.

South bound the Tees took on board the body of Horace Waters at Nootka, and brought it to this city, where the provincial police took charge of it. At Sechart she loaded 650 barrels of whale oil and a quantity of fertilizer. The former commodity was loaded on the Chargeurs-Reunis liner, Amiral Dupere, at the outer wharf to-day, being part of a shipment of over 2,000 barrels.

Fog has been hampering the whaler Orion at Sechart station. The steamer brought in two humpbacks yesterday, and left on another hunt. The Tees will sail for Mosquito harbor and way ports to-night.

DISTRIBUTOR LEAVES

TO-DAY FOR THE NORTH

Officials of Company and Others Inspected Vessel Yesterday Afternoon.

The G. T. P. stern-wheeler Distributor is ready for the North and will probably get away this afternoon, under the command of Capt. S. B. Johnson, for Prince Rupert. She will not remain there long, in fact only long enough to take on necessary supplies before proceeding to Wrangell to enter the Stikine River service under arrangements with the Hudson's Bay Company.

The latter, as already mentioned in these columns, finds it impossible to transfer its steamers from the Skeena, owing to the high water preventing the navigation of Kitselas canyon. The G. T. P. vessel Distributor will take its place for a few weeks, making probably three trips up the Stikine and getting back to Prince Rupert so as to begin its work on the Skeena early in July.

It had been intended yesterday to have made a trial trip with the Distributor but it was found that she was not sufficiently in shape for that, so Capt. Johnson delayed the trial until she steams out on her way north.

Yesterday afternoon a number were the guests of Captain and Mrs. Johnson and the officials of the G. T. P. on board the vessel. Quite a number of the company officials happened to be in the city and were present. These included J. D'Arcy Tate, assistant solicitor of the company; J. H. Bacon, harbor engineer; G. A. McNicholl, purchasing agent on the coast, and Mr. Hall, of A. Brett & Hall, the landscape gardeners, who have in hand the preparing of plans for the new town-site at Prince Rupert. James Thompson, of the Hudson's Bay Company, was among those present. After the vessel had been inspected in all particulars a luncheon was served in the spacious dining room and the vessel, the captain and owners were toasted.

The Distributor is admirably adapted for the trade she is intended for. Built by Alex. Watson, who is acknowledged to be the thoroughly well informed upon the best designs for river steamers, she is adapted in the first place for the handling of heavy freight in large quantities. Nothing has been sacrificed in her to make the vessel a model freighter.

In addition to that there has been considerable quarters provided for a limited number of passengers in addition to the accommodation for the crew. These rooms have been fitted up rather more elaborately than the ordinary stateroom, having brass beds and bath rooms attached, being intended for the most part as quarters for the officials of the company who may, from time to time, wish to make the trip up the Skeena as the work progresses.

COLORADO NOT ASHORE

A report, originating from some unknown source, was extensively published in several newspapers yesterday stating that the United States cruiser Colorado was ashore at Dunsmuir. The Colorado was anchored at the time in 25 fathoms of water and was at no time in danger of running ashore. She is now at Bremerton.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

The following notice is given by the department of marine and fisheries' local branch: "The illuminating apparatus of the light at Cape Mudge has been changed from a 7th order oil lamp to a 5th order lens, 35 m.m. vapour installation."

Japanese fishing-schooner Sunburst, owned and registered in this port, is now discharging her fish catches to the New England Fish Company at Vancouver. She returned from the west coast to Vancouver on Saturday with a large catch.

DOLLAR FARE TO VANCOUVER

INLAND COMPANY PUTS CUT RATE IN FORCE

Princess Charlotte Will Be Hurried Out to Enter Steamship War.

To-day the Inland Navigation Company put into operation the reduced rate of $1 each way between this port and Vancouver by way of Seattle as a reply to the C. P. R.'s new service by which the Princess Victoria yesterday commenced her run on the Seattle-Victoria-Vancouver route and the Princess Royal started the tri-angular schedule which places her in opposition to the Iroquois between the Sound port and Vancouver.

War to the knife appears to be the sentiment of both contending companies, and while the C. P. R. has not yet announced any cut rates on its steamship, it is formulating plans for more aggressive tactics.

It is generally understood that a message has been sent to the builders of the fine new liner Princess Charlotte to have her at once prepared for a quick trip to Victoria and that she will arrive here about the end of September to take part in the struggle. With the Princess Victoria and the new flyer on hand the C. P. R. will have a fleet of coast service steamships which will shame any similar aggregation of passenger vessels on the Pacific coast.

The new service to and from Vancouver announced by the Inland Navigation Company provides for the sale of coupon tickets which will enable the passenger to make the trip, one way, for a dollar. Leaving here on the Chippewa at 4:30 p. m. the passenger will reach Seattle at 9:30 p. m. and will be allowed to board the steamship Iroquois immediately upon arrival. The Iroquois will sail from Seattle at midnight arriving at Vancouver at 8 a. m.

Returning the Iroquois leaves Vancouver at noon, arriving at Seattle about 10 p. m., where the passenger can make connection with the Rosalie leaving at 11 p. m. and arriving at Victoria at 6 p. m. the following morning.

Yesterday huge crowds again patronized the boats from the Sound. The Princess Victoria arrived at noon with 750 passengers and the Chippewa at 2:15 p. m. with 880. The Princess Royal carried out 729 passengers and the Chippewa 1,000 for Seattle.

MARINE NOTES

Among the changes noted in the overdue list is the addition of the barques Medea and Arctura at 8 per cent. The former vessels is 142 days out from Eureka, H. B., for the United Kingdom, and the latter 155 days out from Puget Sound for King's Lynn. The barque Surcouf has been removed from the list, having arrived at her destination.

The steamer Leebro left on Saturday evening for Estevan point carrying some of the machinery for the fog alarm which is being erected there. The D. G. S. Quadra is loading for inside waters and will leave to-morrow on general light and buoy service. The steamer Cascade has returned after placing the explosive bell in order at Chatham point.

Capt. Otto Buckholz has been appointed lightkeeper at Estevan point and will have charge of the fog-alarm station there pending the erecting of the lighthouse. He will leave shortly after the house has not yet been erected at Estevan but the illuminating apparatus is now on hand.

The Alley liner Den of Ruthven arrived this morning from Vancouver and commenced loading 50,000 feet of lumber for New Zealand. She has a lion feet of lumber from Chemainus and Vancouver, and a shipment of salt and canned salmon. It is expected that she will sail to-night.

The Watts-Watts steamship Greenwhich, which recently arrived from San Francisco in the Royal roads to await orders, is reported chartered by Seasons & Co., Seattle, to carry coal, in sacks, from a British Columbia port to Cape Nome.

Last night the steamship Princess May sailed for Skagway and way ports from Vancouver with a full list of passengers and a big consignment of general freight.

The C. P. S. S. Lake Erie docked and landed passengers at Montreal, at 7:15 p. m., on Saturday evening.

The R. M. S. Empress of India sailed at 4 p. m. the 13th inst. from Hongkong for Vancouver.

The C. P. R. steamship Amur leaves to-night for the Queen Charlotte Islands and way ports.

The steamer Mont-Agile arrived from Vancouver at Yokohama on June 13th, at 12:30 p. m.

The steamer Trader leaves to-morrow morning for Gulf ports and New Westminster.

—The Times' office is open every evening excepting Sunday for the transaction of business.

KUMERIC BROUGHT BIG CARGO FROM ORIENT

Japanese Passengers Refused Landing Under Regulations Regarding Passports.

After crawling through a dense fog in the strait from Tatoosh the Weir steamship Kumeric, Capt. Cowley, reached port on Saturday evening from the north with 6,700 tons of cargo and 70 steerage passengers. Her cargo included 3,500 tons of Indian gunny sacks from Hongkong, 500 tons of new season's tea, loaded at Shimizu, and a shipment of porcelain and general freight from Yokkaichi, the Japanese port which was recently opened, and at which the steamship Tremont loaded the first cargo.

Crossing the Pacific the Kumeric met with light southeasterly winds almost all through the voyage. The weather was generally fine, and the passage without incident. A schooner, probably the sealer Umbrina, was sighted off the west coast of the island on Saturday morning.

One of the Japanese passengers destined for this port was refused a landing under the regulation enforced since the 1st of January, which provides that all Japanese shall have passports issued within six months previous to the date of their arrival on these shores. The Japanese who was refused a landing will be unable to enter the United States, and will be deported on one of the Waterhouse steamships. Three Japanese and 34 Chinese landed here, and there were 19 Japanese and 14 Chinese for Tacoma. After discharging nearly 300 tons of freight the steamship proceeded to the Sound yesterday.

GOVERNOR HAD FULL LIST OF PASSENGERS

San Francisco Liner Arrived Last Night With Large Cargo.

With a full cargo of over 2,000 tons and 297 passengers the Pacific coast steamship Governor, Capt. Japson, arrived in port last night from San Francisco. Fifty passengers debarked here and, after discharging local freight, the steamship left for the Sound this morning.

While at San Francisco the Governor had an eventful time. On Monday last she sunk the tug Defiance by hitting the little steamer with one of her propellers which was damaged. On Thursday while the Governor was being launched from the ways at Hunter's dock, she stirred up the mud releasing the corpse of Frederick Werner, who was drowned in that vicinity some time ago.

Twenty-one second-class and the following saloon passengers landed here: Jesse McCallum, A. G. Adams, Robt. Adams, J. P. Nialkeugall and family, R. Parsons and wife, Miss G. E. Polhemus, Dr. H. D. Bennett and wife, H. Tuttle and wife, Mrs. R. McCallum, Thos. Copney, John Hewson and wife, Mrs. E. H. Hill, Mrs. J. G. Ross, Mrs. M. Simpson, Mrs. Almas, G. Coats and wife, Mrs. E. Brown, M. S. TEL. 695.PAIN'S PAGEANT
WITHOUT PEERPORTLAND OREGONIAN
PRAISES COMING SHOWFinest Fireworks West Has Ever Seen, With Big Circus
Acts and Ballets.

While the long-suffering public has grown skeptical—and not without cause, —of the stock productions of the press agent, the verdict of a reliable newspaper after the event is still to be taken as a guide to the worth of professional attractions and with double justification when such attractions bear the hall mark of a great professional name and reputation. Thus, Frohman, La-Shelle, Savage, Belasco and a few others in the theatrical world are names to conjure with. In the domain of pyrotechnics and gorgeous spectacles there is but one name marking superlative quality, Pain, "the fireworks king," having no rivals in his unique and special field. No one who has lived in Europe or east of the American Rockies need be told anything of the man who has designed and provided the fireworks for the historical event as the Queen Victoria jubilee, King Edward's coronation, the Chicago world's fair, the Pan-American, the St.
Louis exposition, and a thousand other monster fetes which might conveniently be called to memory. Here in the Far West, Pain is perhaps less widely known. The reliability of the Portland Oregonian is, however, familiar to everyone, and something of the quality of the big Pain spectacle to be seen in Victoria on Monday and Tuesday, the 22nd and 23rd instants, may thus be gauged by the appended extract from a column report appearing in Oregon's leading newspaper on the 21st of May last, the show as presented in Portland being identical with what Victoria will witness (but for a change of portraits and local set pieces), for Pain refuses to divide or diminish any attraction which bears his name.

"Superlatives are trite," says the Oregonian, "but the best press agent that ever lived could not but be struck by them to describe the beauty of the fireworks display on Multnomah field last night. Drawn by the thunderous outbursts of the miniature Vesuvius in eruption, thousands lined the streets and hills on both sides of the field, and when the most exquisite pyrotechnic display that has ever been seen in the West began, the air was rent by the admirable shouts of the thousands of onlookers. So many and so thrilling are the various features of the great spectacle that it is difficult to say which is the main feature. Probably the one most remembered is the eruption of Vesuvius and the destruction of Naples.
So realistic is it that when the walls of the miniature Naples began to crash in and the lava streams of molten fire poured in furious torrents down the sides of the mountain, 200 local workmen employed by Pain about the grounds did a true-to-life flight from the volcano. So hurried was the flight of show people that many were knocked down and trampled over in the rush.
Fortunately no one was hurt. Immediately following the eruption scene the fireworks began, and it is safe to say that such a varied and lovely display of beautiful figures has never been seen before this side of New York. A mammoth fiery fountain with streams of fire pouring as naturally as water, a revolving sun, an exquisite Grand Army badge in colors of the organization, and a gorgeous imitation of Niagara Falls are some of the fire pictures that send thrills creeping through the most blasé sightseer. There were also monster revolving fire wheels and comic figures in funny trapeze stunts, and thousands of dazzling skytravellers in every color of the rainbow.
Before the main part of the big show is given Pain's collection of circus and vaudeville performers put on an exhibition that is seldom equaled, even in the highest class shows. The Arabian acrobats are a wonderful collection of tumbler, but perhaps the cleverest exhibition of all was the triple bar work of McLinn Bros. This act is probably unique."

The ballets also are gorgeous spectacles, introducing some forty graceful and beautiful young women, and the realistic pictures presented on a 250-foot stage are miracles of mechanical genius. It is an eloquent tribute to the fact that Victoria has grown well of late years that Pain is this season for the first time induced to visit the British Columbia capital, a final reluctance to "playing any town of less than 50,000 population" being dispelled by the completion of arrangements for excursions from all points on the Island, the C. P. R. offering a return rate of $2.10 from Nanaimo, and the special train for all points on the E. & N. railway being held on Tuesday until the close of the performance. The prices for the great attraction do not exceed $1, inclusive of grand stand seats, while the general admission is placed at 50c.
There is no "side shows," and the one ticket admits to band concert, spectacle, ballets, the succession of circus features, the realistic demolition of the city of grim Vesuvius, and the concluding fireworks display, which is guaranteed to far surpass any previous pyrotechnical offering ever made in Western Canada. In the earlier days of the carnival proper it was given under canvas as a combination circus and spectacle. Since then it has grown and expanded until it is now "too big for tent or roof, and only possible with heaven's lofty dome its canopy."

RUSH FOR COTTAGES.

Country Week-end Retreats Are Becoming More Popular in England.

It is comparatively but a short time ago when dealing in country cottage property was looked upon as practically restricted to local centres, where the farmer or large landowner bought for the occupation of his laborers and servants, says the Daily Globe of London.
To-day, however, the country cottage is eagerly sought after by many who reside in the bigger cities as a week-end retreat, where the harassed business or professional man may periodically enjoy the seclusion of his own family and the benefits of the simple life. With this in view the estate department of the London and Paris Exchange, Ltd., at 27 Charles Street, St. James', S. W., are devoting special attention to these popular little freeholds. From time to time cottages of considerable historical interest are placed in their hands for disposal. Among others, for instance, is the old Manor House at Lyme Regis.
This cottage, with its fine old oak staircase, was occupied by the Duke of Monmouth when he landed in Dorset.
It can now be had at something like 28 per annum. Another property for disposal comprises the birthplace of the late Sir Henry Irving, and is situated in a quiet picturesque village near Castle Cary, Somerset. Many fine specimens of genuine Tudor and Elizabethan cottages can be had to-day at ridiculous prices, for it is curious to note that the owners in so many cases fail to recognize that their association with the lives of England's historical subjects places them beyond the pale of mere pounds, shillings, and pence.

Liberal Enthusiasm Displayed at Rally in New Westminster.

New Westminster, June 13.—That Liberalism is the popular policy was amply demonstrated by the crowded audience and the enthusiasm displayed last evening at a Liberal rally in the hall adjoining the Liberal club rooms. The chair was occupied by J. W. MacDonald, the president of the Liberal Association, while an orchestra was in attendance to play selections between the speeches.

The speaker of the evening, W. W. B. McInnis, on being called upon by J. W. MacDonald, addressed the meeting, was, on rising, greeted with uproarious cheers. In opening his address Mr. McInnis expressed the pleasure it gave him to be in New Westminster, to see before him so many of the friends of his boyhood days spent in this city. He also expressed the satisfaction it gave him to see by the large attendance that the Liberals of New Westminster were keeping in touch with one another, and were able to realize the necessity for continual battling against the contemptible, mud-slinging tactics adopted by the Conservative party.

The speaker gave a resume of the position of the country under the Tory regime, and compared it with the position that Canada occupies to-day, amply demonstrating that the Dominion has been placed in its present proud position amongst nations by the able administration of the Laurier government, a government that has never had a deficiency since coming into power, and one that has such a record for trade expansion, increase of immigration and general prosperity that had the record been made by a Conservative government it would have caused the very heavens to roar. Mr. McInnis also expressed his sympathy with a party having such a great weakness as that experienced by the Conservatives in lack of efficient leaders and also in having such a general as Mr. Borden, who, unlike the Liberal leader of 1893, was afraid to organize his party and come out with a definite statement as to his platform. Mr. Borden, although making many statements and promises when campaigning in the West last fall, as to some of the vital questions as regards this province, had on his return to Ottawa failed to even mention the Asiatic question. He had gone further and had opposed the passing of the act which had relieved the situation more than anything else that had been done. He referred to the restricting and compelling of all Oriental immigrants to come direct from their native countries.

On Recent Elections.

Speaking on the late elections, Mr. McInnis ridiculed the idea of any gains to the Conservatives beyond what they might have had four years ago had they had the courage to take them, and also the idea of the results having any direct bearing as to results in the federal elections. He pointed out that the increase in representatives for Conservatism in Ontario was brought about by the creation of additional seats in that hot bed of Toryism, Toronto. In conclusion, Mr. McInnis said that the clean government and progressive policy of the Liberal party assured Sir Wilfrid Laurier being returned again to power whenever the Dominion election came.

The Liberal nominee, Robert Jardine, was then called upon by the chairman, but on account of the lateness of the hour he spoke but a few minutes. Mr. Jardine pointed out the necessity for the young element in Liberalism associating themselves and gathering round them the young men of the country, who will naturally adopt the principles of the Liberal party, standing as it does for progress and advancement. In conclusion he proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. McInnis and Mr. Farris, which was seconded by Mr. Hardiman, who also included the artists who had provided the musical part of the programme, and J. A. Lee for so kindly lending the use of the hall in which the meeting was held. The vote of thanks tendered by the chairman was endorsed by everyone present with prolonged cheers.

RAILS FOR CHILLIWACK LINE.

Vancouver, June 13.—The rails for the Chilliwack line were ordered from the Old Country yesterday by Acting Manager Glover, of the B. C. Electric Company. The order represents a value of $375,000, and the first shipment of 2,000 tons is expected to arrive here about October 1st. This will be sufficient for the twelve-mile stretch which Messrs. Boyd & Craig are now grading between New Westminster and Cloverdale. Good progress is being made with the grading, and should the weather prove favorable this fall, it is quite possible that the rails may be laid and that section in operation this year.

DEVELOPING ROSSLAND MINES.

Roseland, B. C., June 13.—For the purpose of developing the Surprise and You-Know, two properties belonging to the Josie Group, diamond drilling has been carried on for some time. They have good surface showings. Satisfactory results are shown in the ore shoots on the 1550-foot and 1650-foot levels of the Le Roi, and there is much more ore in sight now than has been the case for some time. In April the gross receipts amounted to $90,000, and it is said the May total will equal that amount.

—The Times' office is open every evening excepting Sunday for the transaction of business.

STRIKE AT YMR MINE.

Blind Lead Believed to Have Been Located After Many Years.

Ymir, June 13.—It is rumored here that a big strike has been made at the Ymir mine. Under the direction of Manager H. G. Nichols, for some years the company has been endeavoring to locate a blind lead that was supposed to exist as there was much mineral indication on the hill back of the mine that assumed 900 and upwards being found; this lead was thought to be parallel to the main Ymir lead, and work in that direction has opened up new ore bodies which are equally as rich as the former Ymir lead.

B. C. SMELTER SHIPPING BLISTER COPPER

Over 12,000 Tons Treated Last Week at Greenwood Plant.

Greenwood, June 13.—The first car of blister copper shipped from the B. C. Copper Company's smelter since the resumption, left the yards on Monday morning. Since then the converters have been turning out nearly a car a day, a record that will be beaten just as soon as the new compressor at the Mother Lode is in running shape and the big tonnage from the Mother Lode starts. It is expected that they will turn the compressor on Sunday, but it will be a few days after that before it is in working shape.

At the smelter there are about 175 men at work, and with the operation of the new crusher at the custom ore bins, a force will be put on amounting to about 20 men to handle the sample mill. At present the delay in starting the sample mill arises from the C. P. R. not having laid the necessary trackage. This will be completed by Monday.

The shortage in coke, feared because of difficulty in obtaining a sufficient supply of cars, and from the general tying up of business resulting from washouts on the Crow's Nest, is now quite done away with and coke is coming in regularly and the supply is plentiful.

The smelter of the B. C. Copper Company, this week treated 12,215 tons of ore, which was distributed as follows: Mother Lode, 9,423 tons; Oro Denoro, 2,825; Napoleon, 145; and Lone Star, 21 tons.

AWFUL CONDITION.

Twenty-five Vancouver Hindus Sleep in Room Eight Feet by Ten.

Vancouver, June 13.—The members of the Asiatic Exclusion League met last night in small numbers and adjourned. It was explained that owing to the absence of the secretary, who is in Victoria, notices of meeting had not been posted, and obscurity reigned as to the object of the gathering. The chairman explained that it had nothing to do with the adoption of a parliamentary committee. Mr. Russell, however, speaking with reference to the presence of one or two non-members, mentioned the choice of parliamentary representatives as one of the subjects to come before the meeting. On the motion of R. B. Alty, seconded by Mr. Baer, it was agreed to adjourn. Before the motion was passed another was adopted that the executive meet Mackenzie King at 9 o'clock this morning.

Incidentally, an informal discussion took place on a visit which some members made to Chinatown recently. The statement was made last Sunday in a room not larger than eight by ten feet, 25 Hindus were huddled together and that the unsanitary conditions were simply indescribable. Two members offered to act as guides, and show anyone over these premises, and strongly censured the health authorities for the existence of such places. What was true of one case was true of many, and the fear of an epidemic which might spread over the city, through an outbreak of some disease native to these people, was strongly argued. Chinese restaurant premises were also graphically described.

ONE HUNDRED MILES OF KETTLE VALLEY LINE

Immediate Start to Be Made on Work of Building Road Northward.

Nelson, June 15.—W. P. Tierney, the railroad contractor, has left for the Boundary country for the purpose of starting work on the continuation of the construction of the Kettle Valley Railroad northward. This will be actively prosecuted through the summer, by the end of which steel should have been laid for at least one hundred miles north of Grand Forks. Work is being completed upon the improvement of the C. P. R. at the Mother Lode mine, and also at the point crossing the Gold range just west of Arrow Lake. Mr. Tierney has also a force of men working in the other direction at Homer in the Crow's Nest in preparation for the opening of the C. P. R. coal mines in the beginning of December next.

HONEYMOON ON COAST.

Revelstoke, June 13.—The marriage of Mr. F. Warrington Campbell and Miss Mabel Clara Leonard, daughter of Mr. W. E. Leonard, L. L. D., of Port Huron, Ont., took place on Wednesday evening, June 10th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Cameron on Fifth street, in the presence of several friends of the young people. Mr. E. Cameron acted as best man while the bride was attended by Miss Myrtle Cathels, dressed daintily in white. Rev. T. W. Hall performed the ceremony, at the close of which the party sat down to a dainty wedding repast and the health of the bride and bridegroom being heartily toasted. The bride wore a handsome gown of pale blue silk and carried a bouquet of bridal roses, and was given away by Mr. C. Cameron. The presents were numerous and costly. The happy couple left the same evening on No. 97 for the Coast, amidst congratulations and showers of rice, where they will spend their honeymoon.

ANOTHER TORY CANARD.

All G. T. P. Construction Material is Shipped West Over C. P. R.

Vancouver, June 13.—Sensational charges made in the House of Commons that plant, equipment and supplies in connection with the construction of the Pacific railway were being hauled over American railways to Seattle for transportation north to the disadvantage of the Canadian Pacific Railway were given absolute denial, by D. McLeod, purchasing agent of Messrs. Foley, Welch & Stewart, the railway contractors, whose headquarters are now at Prince Rupert.

"Those statements made in the East are absolutely unfounded," said Mr. McLeod to-day in the Province. "I have no hesitation in declaring that all the plant we shipped from Ontario, Manitoba and the new provinces for use on the Pacific division of the Grand Trunk Pacific was routed over the Canadian Pacific to Vancouver. Not a pound of it went via an American road. The transportation of this large outfit aggregating thousands of tons, has been and is being carried out by steamers flying the British flag. Our supplies are being purchased in Victoria and Vancouver. We have not expended one cent in the American coast cities and, for that matter, don't intend to."

B. C. MINES.

Ore Shipments and Smelter Receipts During Last Week.

Nelson, June 13.—Shipments from the mines of southeastern British Columbia for the past week and the year to date are as follows:
Boundary—Week, 26,085 tons; year, 504,347.
Roseland—Week, 4,714 tons; year, 126,725.
East of Columbia river—Week, 1,070 tons; year, 45,237.
Total, week, 31,869; year, 676,356.

TO SATISFY JUDGMENT.

Grand Forks, June 13.—A one-quarter interest in the mine and claim and all of the Munster mineral claim, both situated in Franklin camp, are to be sold at the government office in this city on Monday next at 10 a. m. by Sheriff Kerman, to satisfy a judgment obtained by Forbes M. Kerby against the McKinley Mines, Limited, for the sum of $406.90.

It seems to the city editor of the London Morning Leader that a spell of cheap money is assured, and that the stock market is in for a good time this summer. With money so cheap it is bound to find employment in securities bearing higher rates of interest than can be obtained on advances at present. The banks allow only 1 per cent. interest on deposits, and there are many good securities which can be bought to yield from 3 to 5 per cent., with a fair prospect of improvement in capital value.

The Czar of Russia employs 30,000 servants, and his stables contain 5,000 horses for his personal use.

THE BRITISH PRESENTATION

PUBLIC MEN SPEAK ON THE MEMORIAL

Tribute Paid to Memory of the Soldiers Wolfe and Montcalm.

Recently a meeting was held at the Mansion house, London, on behalf of the Wolfe and Montcalm memorial at Quebec. The lord mayor presided, and was supported, among others, by Lord Crewe, secretary of state for the colonies, Field-Marshal Lord Roberts, Lord Stanhope, Lord Fitzmaurice (under-secretary for foreign affairs), Lord Lichfield, Field-Marshal Lord Grenfell, Lord Middleton, Lord Strathcona (high commissioner for Canada), Lord Howick, Admiral Sir Archibald Douglas, Major-General Sir Henry Rawlinson, Count de Lastours (representing the French embassy), Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the Bishop of London, the Hon. Hugh Wyndham, Mr. A. M. Grenfell, Mr. Arnold-Forster, M. P., Major-General Sir Ronald Lane, Mr. St. Lo Strachey, Sir Gilbert Parker, M. P., Dr. G. R. Parkin, the Hon. Sir Daniel McMillan (lieutenant-governor of Manitoba), Mr. Clouston (president of the Bank of Montreal), Lieutenant-General Sir Edward Hutton, Colonel Sir Charles Parsons, Canon Bell, Mr. Sheriff Wakefield, Lady Middleton, Lady Evelyn Grey, and Lady Dorothy Howard.

The lord mayor announced letters of regret at inability to be present from the prime minister, Mr. Balfour, Lord Lansdowne, Lord Wolseley, and others. Lord Lansdowne wrote: "I need scarcely assure you that I am entirely in sympathy with the proposal which will come before you. I am, indeed, one of those who, at Lord Grey's suggestion, were the first to intimate their readiness to give it every encouragement in their power. Four of the pleasantest years of my life were spent in Canada, and in each of them I had the good fortune to spend a few weeks at Quebec. I am, therefore, fully able to appreciate the importance of the scheme which the Canadian government has so judiciously taken up. I am sure that we are right in doing what we can in this country to indicate our good will and our desire to be given an opportunity of participating in the project, to which I cordially wish all possible success." Lord Wolseley wrote: "I rejoice to think that at last we are to have a monument in Quebec which will be worthy of the two great soldiers who fell at its capture, two centuries and a half ago. How often as a boy I read the story of Wolfe's battle on the Heights of Abraham, which made us the inheritors of beautiful Canada! Where, in any part of the King's dominions, is there a British subject who would not wish to end his days as his both Montcalm and Wolfe upon that memorable day? In all the glorious annals of French history, it would be difficult to find a braver general, a more noble character than that of Montcalm, Wolfe's chivalrous opponent. I rejoice, therefore, that the proposed monument is meant to honor the memory of both the stalwart soldiers who faced one another that 13th of September nearly a century and a half ago. I had so many good friends amongst the Canadians of French and English origin that I am glad to be associated with them in an object that must find favor with all loyal subjects of our King. I inclose a cheque for £10 and wish it were for ten times that amount." Sir Louis Jetté, lieutenant-governor of the province of Quebec, and president of the headquarters committee of the Quebec Battlefields Association, wrote, sending 1,000 copies of "The Quebec Battlefields: An Appeal," for distribution at the Mansion house meetings, and offering the warmest thanks to the lord mayor for the far-reaching spirit of generosity in which he had called that meeting. Telegrams wishing success to the meeting were announced by the lord mayor from the premiers of Ontario, British Columbia and Saskatchewan. The premiers of British Columbia and Saskatchewan announced in their messages that their provinces and that of Alberta were uniting in a joint contribution to the memorial. Mr. Garneau, mayor of Quebec, chairman of the National Battlefields commission, telegraphed: "Cordial thanks for meeting in favor of battlefields. Fifty thousand pounds have been subscribed here, and another £50,000 required. Best wishes for success."

Miss Talbot, secretary of the Victoria League, wrote, promising the co-operation of the league and announced that it had been decided to organize shilling subscriptions in town and country districts.

The lord mayor explained the project of the Canadian people to commemorate the founding of Quebec by Champlain, 300 years ago, and the beginning of the land comprised in the scene of the ever memorable battle of September 13, 1759, between Wolfe and Montcalm.

Lord Crewe, who was cordially received, moved the first resolution, which was in the following terms: "That this meeting expresses its hearty consent to the Canadian movement to dedicate the Heights of Abraham, which was the scene of the ever memorable battle of September 13, 1759, to the memory of the great leaders who fell there, and heartily supports the proposal to present, on behalf of the people of Britain, a memorial to Wolfe and Montcalm as a birthday gift to Canada." Lord Crewe, after some introductory observations, said: "There world the bare repetition of which thrills our minds with recollections of the great deeds of the past. But there are some few which are doubly sacred because they not only recall the memory of famous achievements, but also remind us of the passing away from this mortal scene of the spirits of those who planned and guided their execution. Such a name is Trafalgar, such is Lucknow, and such also is Quebec. I think it may fairly be said that among all the historic dramas of the past there is none more complete in all its details, none, if I may use the phrase, more altogether satisfying, than that which was played in Canada in the middle of the 18th century. Consider the two great protagonists of the fight. There was Wolfe—a plain soldier, a young man, for he was not 23 when he fell—personally not welcome to the governing clique at home of courtiers and of courtier politicians, but one of the very finest of British soldiers, and the man who, above all others among our national heroes, was cast in the same mould as our national heroes was cast in the same mould as our favorite hero of all—I mean, of course, Nelson. Opposed to him was Montcalm—a man glowing with the fire of his Southern blood, a scholar and a student, as Wolfe himself was, and altogether a specimen of one of the finest types that the world has ever shown—that of the noble French gentleman. Then consider the two races, the two nations that were thus pitted against each other. They were well matched for the race of honor, and they were well matched also in victory—because we must never forget that, although the famous struggle of 1759 on the Heights of Abraham was a British victory, it was followed, in the year following, by the battle of Sainte Foye, which was as completely a victory for the French arms. These two nations are, we delight to think, now fused together under a common government loyalty. Perhaps I may be allowed to quote the words of three Canadian governor-generals on this question of the two races in Canada, because they show a remarkable difference in the manner in which the prospect of the two races, French and English, was regarded at different times. First I will read the words uttered by the great soldier who saved Canada 20 years later—Guy Carleton. He had been Wolfe's quartermaster-general and was afterwards governor-general of Canada. He said, speaking in 1787, "Barring a catastrophe shocking to think of, this country must to the end of time be peopled by the Canadian race, who already have taken such firm root and got to so great a height that any new stock transplanted will be totally hid and imperceptible amongst them." Many years later, Lord Durham was governor of Canada. No name should be spoken of with greater respect than Lord Durham's in connection with Canada. We all know the incalculable services he rendered both to her and to England, but on this occasion he was at fault, because, speaking of time and mode; it is but to determine whether the small number of French who now inhabit Lower Canada shall be made English under a government which can protect them, or whether the larger number shall have to undergo, at the rude hands of its uncontrolled rival, the extinction of a nationality strengthened and embittered by continuance." The last quotation is from another great man, Lord Elgin, the father of my predecessor at the colonial office, who has himself taken the keenest interest in this movement. Lord Elgin said: "You will never anglicize the French inhabitants of the province; let them feel, on the other hand, that their religion, their habits, their prepossessions, their prejudices if you will, are more considered and respected here than in other portions of this vast continent, and who will venture to say that the last hand which waves the British flag on American ground may not be that of a French Canadian." This proved in general-though I hope not as regards the last sentence to be a true forecast. The two nations are, as I said, now fused together, and we do not speak at all of French Canadians any more than we speak of English Canadians—we speak of them all as Canadians, pure and simple. And this association is pleasantly illustrated to all our minds nearer home by the friendly understanding which now exists between the two races, a benefit, as we hope and believe, to the peace of the world. And we ought not to forget that this movement has also evoked a warm sympathy among the inhabitants of the great republic, the next door neighbor of Canada, for the United States has joined in cordial recognition of this great celebration. Now we are apt to think of Canada as a new country. It is celebrating this year its tercentenary—a short period, perhaps, as the life of nations goes, but it is a respectable period all the same. It is 300 years since Champlain founded Quebec, as we now know Quebec, though I think we ought to put in a word for his less known predecessor, Cartier. He was a man who failed where Champlain succeeded a few years later, but it was not a failure or a disgrace to him or the nation to which he belonged. We think of Canada in the light of all its modern activities as one of the great granaries of the world. We think of it throbbing as it is with many prosperous industries, and instinct with a great commercial life. We think of it also as being in the very forefront of a movement towards the highest form of education. And towards Canada, as we know, there moves a steady flow of emigration from the Old World. Surely it is a good thing that as each emigrant arrives at the gate of the new world—one of the most beautiful spots on which the eye of man can possibly rest—he should be encouraged to bare his head to the memory of the glorious past, even if it be only for an hour that he is able to visit the scene of these great historic encounters. Surely, also, it is a good thing that for many generations to come Canadians should bring their children from all over the great Dominion, there to imbibe something of the sense of the dignity of history, without which the life of any nation, however materially prosperous, must be a bare and a stunted thing. And so this scheme has been set on foot, first, as Lord Grey has told us, on the initiative of various gentlemen of French extraction in Quebec; but, as Lord Grey has not told us, encouraged by him with all the force of his vivid personality and the tireless industry which he has always brought to bear in support of the many good causes with which he has been associated. That scheme has yet to find its culminating point in the month of July, in the visit of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to Quebec, in which he will carry out the cordial association which has for many generations connected the Royal Family with Canada. We here to-day are privileged to take our part in this great celebration, and we are, I believe, all proud to do it, because we believe it will result in forging one more link in the chain of affection which so closely binds us and the great Dominion together. Lord Roberts, who was received with loud cheers, seconded the resolution. He said: "It is a source of great pleasure to me to see so influential a gathering collected here to-day, for I cannot imagine a memorial better calculated to stir the public mind to a sense of true patriotism than that which is being organized in memory of those gallant spirits, Wolfe and Montcalm. It is close on 150 years ago that these two, representing, indeed, conflicting interests, but actuated by the same single-minded virtue—love of country—met in deadly combat on the Plains of Abraham. Both gave up their lives that day for their country, as both were only too willing to do; but what a difference in their last moments—the one, conscious of victory, passed away murmuring, 'Then I die content.' The other, acknowledging defeat, could only wince with the words, 'So much the better. I am happy not to live to see the surrender of Quebec.' Except for this their lives were very similar—both were soldiers from their earliest days—Wolfe an ensign at 14, Montcalm at 15—both made for themselves brilliant military reputations, both were inspired by the same pure motives. Wolfe was recognized as those days of military corruption as being incorruptible—Montcalm was distrusted and thwarted by the governor and other French colonial authorities because he would have no part in the licensed robbery and extortion which was bringing men to the colony. Looked at from the purely military point of view, the Quebec campaign is of absorbing interest. It is almost unsurpassed as an example of a combined naval and military operation, though I doubt whether it is commonly realized what a vitally important part the fleet played, and how nobly they played it. Wolfe, whose force had known severe defeats at Montmorency barely six weeks before, trusted those same troops in one of the most daring throw for victory recorded in history. Then again, when Wolfe found himself at last with his small force, some 5,000 strong, on the Plains of Abraham, he did not hesitate to try an absolute innovation in military formations on the actual battlefield itself; for, finding it necessary to occupy a certain extent of ground, so as to prevent any danger of an enveloping attack, he formed up his infantry for the first time, so far as I know, in history only two deep—the prototype of 'the thin red line' that was to become so famous in the Peninsula under Wellington. Think also of the splendid discipline with which that thin line obeyed Wolfe's orders to delay opening fire, and stood in the open, immovable in spite of the losses they were suffering, until finally, when the French columns were only 40 yards distant, Wolfe himself gave the word to fire. The single volley that followed shattered the French formation and decided the destiny of Canada. The whole sequence of events makes a page in history which cannot fail to stir one's feelings and make one proud to be of the same nationality as the actors in that scene. On the other side we see the dauntless spirit of Montcalm, determined to obey the instructions of his King, and to defend the colony to the last, although he had failed, thanks to the machinations of his fellow-countrymen in Canada, to convince that King of the urgent necessity for sending him reinforcements. Surely I am not wrong in saying that the closing scenes of these two men's lives is a perpetual reminder to us of the true value of patriotism. I cannot help thinking that modern Canada, born, so to speak, on September 13th, has unconsciously inherited that same spirit of patriotism. I shall never forget the loyalty affectionate way in which the Canadians responded to the message that I sent them soon after the beginning of the South African war, nor the magnificent spirit and the valuable services of the Canadian contingents in the field, Canada, with its huge area of fertile country and its rapidly increasing population, is bound to become one of the leading members of that family of nations which make up the British Empire. Given the true loyalty of each member of that family to the sentiment of Empire, loyalty such as Wolfe gave to England and Montcalm to France, we need have no anxiety about the future. In conclusion, let me say that I wish the whole project of this memorial every possible success. I feel that so grand a subject cannot fail to thrill the hearts of Britons and Empire lovers all the world over.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Prince Arthur of Connaught, who was warmly received, moved: "That it is desirable that local committees should be formed to co-operate with the central committee in collecting subscriptions towards the present to be handed by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales from Great Britain to the Canadian people on the occasion of the dedication of the Heights of Abraham." He said: "It gives me great pleasure to be here to-day, and to say a few words in support of a project in which I am deeply interested. I feel sure, too, that my father sincerely regrets that his absence from England makes it impossible for him to be present and to show his sympathy with the object of this meeting. Two years ago I had the pleasure of visiting Canada, and saw for myself the achievements of the land and the people, and realized the great future that undoubtedly lies before them. No part of the history of the British Empire is more full of momentous incidents than that which is concerned with Canada. It is surely right that this history should be given some lasting memorial. It was a brilliant inspiration of Lord Grey's when he suggested that the celebration of Canada's 300th birthday should be marked by the creation of a great national park on that site which witnessed the most dramatic incidents in Canadian history; and I cannot imagine a more suitable birthday gift from the British people than a memorial to those two great soldiers, Montcalm and Wolfe. A national park on the Heights of Abraham will serve to keep for all time before the younger generation of Canada the great traditions of their forefathers; and I trust that when the celebrations take place in July we shall be able to offer to Canada a birthday gift which will show how proud we are of her and how deep is our interest in her welfare. In conclusion, my lord mayor, I am asked to propose that local committees should be formed to co-operate with the central committee in collecting subscriptions. This proposal I feel sure you will agree with, as the movement will no doubt be so widespread as to render it impossible for the central committee to cope with the work involved.

The Bishop of London seconded the resolution in a speech in which he warmly supported the movement, to which, he said, he was the first subscriber.

The resolution was carried. A. M. Grenfell announced that the King and the Prince of Wales had shown their interest in the tercentenary by subscribing 100 guineas each, 50 guineas respectively. Among others, the following subscriptions had been received: Princess Louise (Duchess of Argyll), £20; Lord Strathcona, £200; Lord Mount Stephen, £200; Eton College, £100; Harrow School, £25; Sir Andrew Noble, 100 guineas; £100 each from the Hon. W. F. D. Smith, W. Morrison, Sir John and Lady Gilmour, A. M. Grenfell, Miss Violet Markham, the Daily Telegraph and Sir Peter Coats; £50 each from Lord Rosebery, Lord Northcote, Lord Curzon, E. Wood, and T. Skinner. Mr. Grenfell said that the last subscription he received before coming there was 11s from 16 pupils at a ladies' school at Malvern. There great desire was to get small amounts from all classes as well as large donations from the more wealthy.

Lord Strathcona moved a vote of thanks to the lord mayor, and in doing so announced that the Hudson's Bay Company, as the former governing body of Rupert's Land, had promised to subscribe £5,000 to the object of that meeting.

Lord Middleton seconded the vote of thanks, and said that from Newcastle they had already received £400. The city of Manchester had promised £700, and other places were moving with a view to helping to swell the subscription list. The vote of thanks was cordially passed and the proceedings ended.

Among the subscriptions received by the treasurers of the Wolfe-Montcalm memorial towards the national gift to Canada within the last few days are the following: The Duke of Connaught, £25; Lord Rothschild, £100; Albert Bassett, Sir Edward Sassoon, M. P., £25 each; Canada Club, £20; Haberdashers' Company, Brodersons' Company, £10 10s each; "Canada," £10; Lord St. Germans, £5.

Norway produces annually some 600,000 tons of ice. London buys one-third of this.

Suggestions for the June Bride and Her Attendants

A Bridesmaid's Gown of Printed Chiffon.

Simplicity the Essential Feature of the Bride's Costume.

An Elaborate Frock of Eyelet Embroidery for a Bridesmaid.

Chiffon and Lace is Attractive for a Bridesmaid.

A Simple Frock for the Flower Girl.

FOR at least two months before a wedding the one topic of conversation among the bride's friends and family is the clothes to be worn by the bride, her maids and her flower girl. Of course, there are many brides who are not going to have the full bridal party, yet even they take great interest in the all-absorbing subject—carefully planning what they would have if they were going to have anything. As for her own costume, the bride usually settles that point herself, but the wise girl realizes that the plainer the gown the more effective it will be; everything is so arranged for her to look her best that she need not depend upon the trimming of her gown to add to her beauty. Of course, real lace—whether new or a relic of grandmother's days—is always perfect when used as a trimming for a wedding gown, but, otherwise, the more simple the trimming the more beautiful it will be. This is not a personal opinion, but one with the authority of such confectioners as Paquin, Worth, Dreoull, Redfern and other heralds of fashion.

The bridal gown in the picture is of white satin, the waist trimmed with lace and the neck covered with a guimpe of tucked chiffon. The veil is of Brussels applique, and it adds all the adornment necessary to the costume.

In the family circle, however, the costume of the bride is not the only one to be decided upon, for the designs for the dresses of the attendants are usually chosen by the bride herself. The maid of honor is almost always gowned in a color contrasting with that worn by the bridesmaids, and she may wear a hat or a veil. The hat is usually more effective, for the appearance of the bride should be quite different from that of her attendants. However, if the bride's veil is lace, the tulle veil of the maid of honor will not too closely resemble it. The material of the maid of honor's gown is usually chiffon, and, in this case, it is of white, embroidered on waist and skirt in the predominating shade of the bridesmaids' attire.

The flower girl is not a necessary attendant at a wedding, but when there is a little sister of bride or groom it is wise to have her play a part; in this way the families' feelings will not be hurt. These tiny maidens are usually clad in white linen or muslin dresses, trimmed with lace or hand-embroidered; but their costumes must be simple and in keeping with their youth.

The bridesmaids' gowns are a question that must needs be pondered long, for every lightweight material and every shade under the sun may be used for them. If, however, the maids are not rich, they should not be forced to buy expensive gowns; one poorer girl must set the standard. A fascinating gown is that of painted chiffon, made plainly and trimmed with lace. The band of satin at the foot keeps the skirt in proper folds and makes the dress last longer. The hat is of leghorn, trimmed with white chiffon and roses. It might, however, well be a large Gainsborough of shirred chiffon.

A very magnificent gown is that of solid eyelet embroidery trimmed with Irish lace. It is a slightly heavy gown for a summer wedding, but it is undoubtedly handsome. Such a dress would be ideal for the matron of honor.

A much more simple gown is that of chiffon in a baby blue trimmed with filet lace. It is a charming model, and one that would be inexpensive and useful after the wedding.

A bride, be she rich or poor, should always try to arrange so that the expenses of the attendants' clothes shall in no way embarrass them. The only thing to do is to have a meeting of all the bridesmaids and decide what gowns they prefer; whether or not they will be made so that they can be worn for other occasions after the wedding, and whether they will cost much or little.

Stopping a Flirtation
By Madison Austin.

Just as Boswell looked out of the window, the girl across the way lightly blew a kiss from the tips of her fingers, smiled and nodded in the most friendly fashion. Boswell, quite overcome, could only smile and nod in response.

Ever since the girl had moved in, the week before, Boswell had spent much of his spare time at the window watching for her appearance. A dozen times a day she would stand in the window and smile and wave her hand and Boswell, who worked only at night, had come to count on her appearances and to watch for them.

This was the first time that she had kissed her hand to him and Boswell was not altogether displeased. He was not inclined to be flirtatious even while he was glad that the girl was disposed to be friendly. He had certain ideas of propriety.

In the city it is hard for a girl to make friends unless she works in a store, and even then her field of friendship is limited. The girl and he were neighbors. She had seen him at the window day after day and a friendly nod was nothing more than neighborly. But a kiss was something very different. Decidedly Boswell was sorry that things had gone so far.

As the days passed Boswell grew more than ever interested in his neighbor across the street, and he had begun to forget the kiss. She was a plump little woman and yet scarcely a woman, for there was a certain girliness in her face and manner that gave Boswell the pleasant assurance that she was "Miss" and not "Mrs.", no matter what her name might be. And Boswell was determined that the name should be discovered at no late date, for rapidly he was becoming very much in love with the woman across the way.

Then there came a day when she blew another kiss, and again Boswell frowned and decided that after all he did not care for the girl. He did not want a woman for a wife who would throw kisses to a total stranger, though he did not consider himself a stranger in the full sense of the word, for the nods had established a sort of friendship that was to be construed, as at least the half of an introduction. But for the incident of the kiss, Boswell would long since have made it a complete introduction, for he argued that it would be an easy matter to discover some shop-keeper with whom both she and his mother traded, and that done, the rest should be easy.

There were times when Boswell even told himself that in spite of the long distance kisses, he wanted to make her his wife. She kept her home so scrupulously neat. Through the open window he could see the well-kept parlor and in spite of her frequent appearance at the window, she was content with her household cares. And he wanted a home body for a wife.

So Boswell looked and loved and fluctuated until at last he came to the determination that he would press his suit. The next time the girl blew him a kiss he returned the salute in pantomime and sent a second wafted kiss after the first.

To his surprise and dismay the girl turned indignant. An angry flush came to her cheek and he could almost fancy an angry flash in the eyes, the exact color of which had furnished him food for endless speculation. The girl flounced away from the window and he saw her no more that afternoon.

All that evening as Boswell worked the keyboard of a typewriter machine he wondered why the girl should have been angry when he had returned her message of love. It seemed unreasonable that she should object to his having followed her example.

He hurried through his breakfast the next morning and took up his station at the window. It was nearly an hour before the girl appeared and her very evident effort to make it seem that she was waving to the passengers of a passing train puzzled him. They lived on opposite sides of the raised tracks of the railroad viaduct.

He was still puzzling over the matter when there came a ring at the door bell and presently his mother ushered into the parlor a well-built young fellow whose square jaw was hard and determined and in whose eyes there gleamed an angry light.

He waited until Mrs. Boswell had retired; then he advanced toward the window.

"I want to know what you mean by flirting with my sister, you confounded fellow," was his astonishing conversational opening.

"I didn't know that I had been flirting with your sister. I don't even know who your sister is," was Boswell's defiant reply.

The uninvited guest shook his head. "That sort of thing doesn't go with me," he declared angrily. "You have been flirting with my sister and you do know who she is. The chances are that you have been flirting with so many that you don't know just which one my sister is. She's the girl across the street."

"The one who waves her hand at the window?" asked Boswell with interest. The other man nodded.

"I thought you'd know," he sneered triumphantly. "I tell you you've got to stop it. You threw a kiss at her yesterday."

"What of it?" asked Boswell. "I guess I've as much right to throw kisses to her as she has to throw them to me. She began it long ago. Yesterday was the first time I returned the compliment."

With a strangled oath the other man threw himself upon Boswell and gripped him by the throat. Silently the men fought for a moment, then slowly the assailant's grasp loosened and his hands unclasped from about Boswell's throat.

"Look here," he said, regarding his victim.

"Look here," retorted Boswell, rubbing his reddened throat. "You try that again and I'll brain you and hand you over to the police."

He caught up a heavy paper weight that lay upon the table to emphasize his remark, but the other man only grinned.

"It may have been all a mistake. I don't suppose that I can blame you if you thought you were answering a

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of

to conquer all female diseases.

Mrs. Frank Emsley, Lindsay, Ontario, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "When I wrote to you some time ago, I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the feminine organs and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. 'A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. 'I most heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all women who suffer with female troubles.'"

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pain, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

signal not intended for you. You see, I've two sisters."

"I'm glad you didn't think I was flirting with both of them," muttered Boswell, "or you'd have killed me off-hand."

"My other sister is married," wnet on the man. "She's married to a chap who is conductor in the suburban service. He makes four trips a day out and back, and when the train passes our house Nell waves to him. Sometimes he brings Grace in to spend the day with Nell and Nell kisses her hand to her sister when she sees her in the car. You, like a fool, thought she was kissing her hand to you."

"I quite agree with you," said Boswell sadly. "I am a fool and every kind of fool you want to call me. I didn't notice that she only waved when the train passed. You see I was sort of interested and I wanted to think that she was trying to be neighborly. Would you mind taking me over and letting me apologize? Brady can tell you all about me," he added, pointing to a society button in the other's coat and following it with a sign. "I don't get down to lodge much, because I work nights now, but most of the old chaps know me. Hank Boswell."

"My name's Tom Haight," volunteered the caller. "I've heard of you, Boswell. Come on over and let Nell in on the laugh. She's crazy mad, but I guess she'll see the humor of the thing."

"I'm glad you think she'll see me," cried Boswell in relief as he slipped on his coat. "I don't want anything to interfere with a plan I have in mind for what I thought might be just a flirtation."

Which plan, as he explained some months later to his mother and Tom Haight, consisted of taking a larger flat for the two Mrs. Boswells, himself and Haight.

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

Pains in the muscles, in the side, the back, the neck or the chest—they always carry with them great discomfort. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue they are dangerous. Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation and drives away pain as Nerviline. It does this because it penetrates so quickly. Nerviline is not only powerful but soothing. By relieving congestion it cures pain. It does this always. It cannot fail because it is a true antidote for pain. You can scarcely find anybody that will not tell you nice things about the pain curing power of Nerviline, simply because there is not an ache or pain that it will not cure immediately. Nerviline is an anchor of health in every household, try a 25c bottle.

ABORIGINES IN FORMOSA
Life Among the Head-Hunters.

An article in the Taiyo concerning the treatment of the Formosan aborigines, written by Mr. Imai, chief of the Formosan administration bureau, will be read with interest. He says: "The whole area of Formosa is 2,300 square miles, and more than one half of this land (1,200 square miles) is in a state of darkness and anarchy, occupied by nine tribes of aborigines. These tribes, numbering over one hundred thousand people, are subdivided into clans, and almost all the clans are in fact independent. Sometimes five or six of them make a combined movement, but in time of peace they take independent action, and these circumstances render the administration very difficult. We have to tame or subjugate 700 of these clans one by one. One clan here may be obedient and submissive, but another clan just over the peak may be quite the contrary. Moreover, the Formosan aborigines as a whole possess the characteristic fierceness of all savage people, and no one must be off his guard amongst them; to-day will not foretell to-morrow."

"One of the most vicious of the nine tribes is the Atayal, and they still indulge in the custom of head-hunting. This tribe occupies 770 square miles, and is the most influential of the whole of the aborigines. Other tribes are more or less docile and ready to receive the benefits of civilization. Schools are being established among them, some of their young men have been to Japan, and if we give them agricultural implements, teach them how to use them, and entreat them to abandon the barbarous practice of head-hunting, some of them may become useful members of society—and we have hopes of making normal men out of them. But for all this, we have to be prepared any day for the outbreak of the barbarous spirit. Lawlessness is in their blood; hereditary inclinations are too strong for them to become gentle and law-abiding at once."

"Head-hunting is so interwoven with the life of the aborigines that they have to entirely change their customs and mode of living before they can abandon it. The human head, for instance, is a necessary offering in the ceremony of sowing millet seeds, and this custom is very deeply rooted. When a dispute breaks out among the aborigines, and it seems impossible to settle it, the disputants rally forth, starting at the same time in search of human heads, and the one who is first to bring back a head wins the case. In marriage the bride favors the brave youth who owns most human heads. Thus the possession of human heads means in these people wealth and authority."

"There is another cause which has helped this custom to grow. The Chinese came to this island some four hundred years ago and deprived the aborigines of the fertile plains, treating the people in a cruel fashion. It is recorded that they burned the entire forests in which the aborigines had their homes, and murdered them all. Robbed of their territory, their parents killed, their sisters outraged, the aborigines came to view the Chinese as their natural enemy. Babies were taken to the heights by their fathers, and looking down at the fertile plain, would be told to recover the land and kill the inhabitants. Under such circumstances, the more heads of Chinese they had the more was the honor, and this idea still widely prevails."

"Therefore the satisfaction of the aborigines was very great when they saw the Japanese army fighting to drive the Chinese immediately after the cession of the island to Japan. They thought the Japanese were avenging their wrongs, and welcomed and befriended our army. The physical resemblance of the Japanese to the aborigines did much towards making them friendly towards us. But when the Chinese subjugation had been completed and the Japanese became the protectors of the Chinese as well as of the aborigines, it became incumbent on us to severely punish those who went out in search of Chinese heads. Then there was a revolution in the sentiment of the aborigines towards the Japanese, and apparently thinking the Japanese to be taking the side of their enemies, the Chinese, they now carry out their head-hunting promiscuously, and both Chinese and Japanese are their victims. We have bought the quarrel of the Chinese, as the saying goes, and are paying dearly for it."

"Even during the Chinese sovereignty the boundary line of the aborigines was garrikked in many places. Since 1895 the Japanese government has taken up the same work, and in 1902 boundary line expresses were increased and the work on the boundary garrikked became very active. There were two reasons for this. The first was the scarcity of the material for camphor production, and the necessity that existed for proceeding farther into the woods; and the other was to create order from anarchy, dispel darkness, and open up the natural wealth of the country."

"The boundary line is 57 ri long, and is now garrikked 5,460 men and officers, organized on the militia system. The present boundary line is along the third line of mountain ranges which run through the island, and there are from seven to twenty watch-houses on one ri, five or six men being placed in each watch-house. And alarm is conveyed along the line in case of emergency and all the available forces are mustered at once. Formerly the watch-house had a thatched roof, but the aborigines contrived so often to burn those houses by means of fire-winged arrows, that now we dig the ground and cover the roof with earth. Passers-by are requested to strike a wooden board placed before the house, which breaks the profound silence of the primeval forests, and informs the garrikked that some person is passing. (Where the garrikked is when this is necessary is not explained.) The men

In the watch-house have to go to the valley below to fetch water for cooking. During such errands some of our men have been murdered by aborigines, and now an armed force escorts the water carrier.

"Since 1896 there have been thousands of skirmishes and fourteen big fights, in which 232 Japanese and 2,283 friendly Formosans have been killed, and 141 Japanese and 701 natives wounded, while over four million yen has been spent on the boundary line. But the number of attacks is diminishing rapidly; where there were 400 in 1900, there were only 80 in 1907."

"Aborigines live usually on millet and potatoes, and their business is hunting, so that on this account we cannot forbid them to use firearms. But these arms are turned against us quite often, and herein lies one of the greatest difficulties in dealing with the aborigines. Among themselves they are faithful, chivalrous and chaste, and their morals are on a much higher scale than those of the Formosan Chinese. Their notions of ordinary decency are rather primitive, and their intellect is on so low a plane that they have no clear idea of numbers above ten. It is no easy task to educate the aborigines and make them gentle and intelligent."

HEALTHY REPORTS OF

B. C. KING'S DAUGHTERS

Convention at Duncan Reviews

Wide Scope of Work Accomplished.

Duncan, June 13.—The session of the King's Daughters' convention was opened yesterday by devotional exercises, led by the Rev. Mr. Dever, of the Methodist church in Duncan, who evinced great sympathy with the work of the order and suggested there could be no better epitaph than "she hath done what she could."

There was a recess to allow the convalescent home committee to meet. The committee decided to retain the name Convalescent Home but to slightly widen its scope. Mrs. Watt in reporting the suggestions of the committee stated that the committee would call upon the circles of the province to state what support they would give to the building and maintenance of the institution and that as it was a provincial scheme the circles of the whole province should contribute. Discussion followed by Mrs. Day, Mrs. Hasell and Mrs. Holmes.

The discussion on the provincial secretary's address followed. The chief point discussed was how the order could develop the Christian activities which was a higher and greater object than to expedite business. There was a feeling that among most of the members the higher spiritual side of the work was neglected for the purpose of making money for some especial work.

The address was discussed by Miss Chapman, of Vancouver; Mrs. Reid, of Rocky Point; Mrs. McDonald, of Duncan; Mrs. D. Holmes, of Duncan, and Mrs. Leather, who suggested that the beautiful initiation services which had been latterly neglected would help the newer members to realize the spiritual side of our work. Mrs. Watt, Mrs. Hardie, Mrs. Hasell and Mrs. Day took part. Mrs. Day suggested that for any society a good motto might be, "What kind of an order would it be if every member were just like me."

The reports of the district secretaries were read.

Mrs. Watt, district secretary for Esquimalt, reported that their fund had been raised partly by "The Arbutus Fair" and they helped the maternity ward, the churches and a mission in Uganda, and that their wishes were to give assistance to the cause of temperance, the protection of young girls and the Provincial Convalescent Home.

Miss Chapman from Vancouver reported that good earnest work had been done there and that former members had returned to the order. The circles there had helped to furnish the Children's Aid Home, and had helped to make clothing for the children, and had done a great deal of individual work.

Mrs. Hasell from Victoria reported that there were so many outside interests that some of the members had gone from the order to take up other lines of work. The young people did not recognize the need for serious service. There was not enough personal devotion. In Victoria at one time the King's Daughters was the only non-sectarian charitable society and now there were seven most necessary charitable societies, and now many of its members were doing splendid work in some of these societies, whose works especially appealed to them. The late Mrs. Maitland-Douglass, of Cowichan, and Mrs. Tilton, of Victoria, had started the vital spark from which the King's Daughters' societies of the province had grown. The first outside donation to the Jubilee hospital was a chair given thirteen years ago by the King's Daughters' Society.

Mrs. McDonald, of Cowichan, read the report for that district. She reported five circles, two of them being composed of very young workers. The membership and enthusiasm in this district is increasing.

After a recess and the nomination of officers, the reports from the various circles were read.

Mrs. Hardie, of Victoria, read that of this circle is to make and provide clothing necessary in maternity cases to those in need. The motto of the circle is "By love serve one another."

The report of the Hawthorne circle in Victoria was read by Miss Fraser in the absence of Miss Elaine McMeekin.

Their work has been sewing for the children's ward in Jubilee hospital.

The report of the Victoria circle was read by Mrs. Harrison. She read a letter from Mrs. Tilton. For the past six years this circle has provided a rolling chair for the use of anyone who needs it. There is need also for another chair which this circle is trying to raise the funds for. During the six years their rolling chair has never been idle.

The report of the Scattered circle of Cowichan was read by Miss Wilson in the absence of Mrs. Skrimshire.

During the winter months Mrs. Bazzett, the assistant leader, had conducted fortnightly classes for Bible study. There had been a visit from Miss Brown, Dominion secretary, and a public meeting arranged which Miss Brown addressed. Refreshments served at the agricultural fair, sale of work in December, sacred concert in Lent, and a flower show were the chief means of income during the year. This circle gave $1,000 to the Convalescent Home fund. Many new members have joined the order and some former members have returned to work. At present there are sixty-one members in this circle. Besides the Convalescent Home fund, this circle has helped the Chechnais hospital, the Presbyterian church, St. John's Guild and individual charities, especially at Christmas.

The Looking Out circle of Cowichan's report was read by Miss Christine Bazzett. This is a society of very young members, but they have been very enterprising. They have earned money by buying an ice cream freezer and letting it or using it themselves at entertainments. The money earned has been spent in materials to knit gloves and muffers for deep sea fishermen and articles for the sale of work of the older society.

The Silver Cross circle's report was read by Miss Kate Robertson.

The report of the Help-in-need circle of Crofton was read by Mrs. Frayne. The money for this society has been earned by ice cream socials and spent partly in helping the local missionary.

The report of the Happy Workers, a society of ten little workers, was written by Hazel Dunlop and showed the little band to be flourishing.

Mrs. Cornwall read the report of the Happy Seaside of Metochin. This circle has helped with the Arbutus fair, church decorations, piano in Metochin school. They devote their energies to church work.

Mrs. Reid, of Rocky Point, reports for a small circle who have sewed chiefly for the children's ward of the Jubilee hospital.

Mrs. Chapman, of Vancouver, read the treasurer's report of the St. Andrew's Society. They have given flowers for the sick, clothing for the poor and helped to furnish the Children's Home.

One of the very interesting reports was that of the Practical circle of twenty-five members in Vancouver. This report was read by Miss Drake. They had collected $125 for the Home of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Vancouver, made curtains for the Children's Home, given groceries and clothing to the poor, and were holding a sale to furnish the library of the Children's Home.

"The Whatsoever" circle of Vancouver were helping furnish a dining-room in the Children's Home.

Mrs. Oliver read the report of the Fairview circle of Vancouver.

The Sunshine circle of Cloverdale are helping the poor.

Mrs. Hasell thanked the circles who had so generously helped the children's ward of the Jubilee hospital.

It was decided that the committee in charge of the building for the convalescent Home should begin to build at once, the circles present agreeing that $500 more than the sum in hand should be collected. It was decided that the work should be provincial and that delegates should appeal to their circles and the district secretaries should report to the committee as to what funds they could pledge from their circles for the annual maintenance of the home.

A suggestion was made to discontinue the provincial headquarters in Victoria. This was left in the hands of the executive.

The result of the election of officers for the ensuing year was announced. Mrs. Shaw, of Golden, provincial secretary; Miss Leitch, of Victoria, recording secretary; Mrs. L. H. Hardie, of Victoria, treasurer, were elected by acclamation.

The following four were elected to the executive by ballot: Miss Wilson, of Cowichan; Mrs. Hasell, of Victoria; Mrs. Pringle, of Vancouver; Mrs. Reid, of Metochin.

After a consecration service by the Rev. Granville Christmas the meeting adjourned. The delegates were entertained at tea by the Silver Cross circle of Cowichan at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan. In the evening Miss Wilson, leader of the Scattered circle, gave a "at home" for the delegates at "The Cliffs."

The next annual convention of the King's Daughters will be held in Victoria.

It is interesting to note that of the thirty-eight delegates attending the convention the whole thirty-eight were present at all four sessions. These thirty-eight ladies had the privilege of casting fifty-three votes and fifty-three votes were cast in every case.

The ladies who are remaining in Duncan to-day are being entertained at the South Cowichan and the Duncan tennis courts.

—The Times' office is open every evening excepting Sunday for the transaction of business.

—The charge of neglecting to provide for her, preferred against Roy S. Dakin, by his wife, was dismissed in the police court this morning, as Chief Langley said that the woman had announced her intention of going to Seattle in order to secure a divorce. W. C. Morehead, who appeared for Dakin, announced that the husband was also taking divorce proceedings in the British Columbia courts.

—In the provincial police court this morning Vincent Agod, a Spanish seaman from the British steamer Agapanthus, was convicted of refusing to obey orders and was sentenced to serve a week in jail and to forfeit six days' pay. The witnesses in the case were Capt. Davis and First Officer James Reid of the Agapanthus. Capt. J. G. Cox acted as interpreter.

THE SHOOTING CASE.

Fuller Report on the Ymir Episode—Quarrel Occurred Over Accounts.

—J. J. Galbraith took out a permit this morning for the erection of a house on Queen's avenue at a cost of $1,800.

—Mah Fat, the elegant Chinese, who appeared in court Saturday charged with vagrancy, failed to answer his name this morning, and his bail of $50 was forfeited and a warrant issued for his arrest.

A report from Ymir in connection with the shooting of Henry Sann, a Swiss miner, by George Coleman, a hotelkeeper, on the morning of Thursday last, says that the tragedy occurred through a difference of accounts between the two men and that when certain money which Sann had paid to Coleman to keep for him was not forthcoming the shooting occurred. The report says that Coleman claims to have shot in self defence and that he was attacked by Sann with a knife. The wounded man was shot three times in the head, in the jaw and in the arm. He was taken to the hospital, where the bullets were extracted by Dr. Foot, who now says that serious complications are unlikely and that the man will recover.

Mrs. Coleman, wife of the hotelkeeper, says that when Sann attacked her husband with the knife, he asked him several times to desist before he fired the shots. On the other hand Sann denies that he made any attempt to use a knife, but merely wanted a settlement of accounts.

Superintendent Hussey, of the provincial police, who received a report of the matter this morning, says that as far as has been ascertained he has no information that an attack was made on Coleman by Sann. Sann has been in the neighborhood for about two years, during which time he has been engaged in mining and is said to have been a hardworking and sober man. He boarded at the Waldorf hotel, where the shooting took place.
